marking a first for this city and the second time the meeting was held outside Vancouver. A previous meeting was held in Victoria. (Courier photo)

Valley Second Highest In Per Capita Investment

The Okanagan has the second highest per-capita rate of the investment in Canada, representatives attending a press conference Tuesday were told. The conference was part of impact on local economy.

Taking part in discussions were George Tapp, chairman, John Van Luven, president and Bruce Smith of Kelowna, a director of the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Mr. Smith said Peachland would experience "a tremendous boom" from Brenda Mines and the 300 employees who would live in the area. He said the population of the area could increase by 2,000, with the people required to provide services for the mine workers.

Some of the executives would live in Kelowna, Westbank, Penticton and Summerland, he said.

Mr. Tapp said the Valley may benefit from other explorations begun in the area too.

WINE BOOM

Mr. Smith said the wine industry in the Okanagan was expanding and experts said the Okanagan should produce most of Canada's wine, a variety superior to other Canadian centres.

"This will bring another tremendous boom to the Okanagan," said Mr. Smith.

Asked what impact the Okanagan had on the Vancouver exchange, Mr. Van Luven said it had "great impact" on both volume and by investors and companies here.

Mr. Smith said when a "full investment business" can be operated in Kelowna, it means Okanagan business "is a considerable amount." Also significant is other investment houses establishing branches here, he said.

Mr. Van Luven said Brenda was typical of the few dozen companies that have affected the area where they were set up. He said they were conceived and financed through facilities of the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Commenting on the effect of the recently settled IWA strike on local economy, Mr. Smith said forestry was not as important an industry in the Okanagan as in other areas, such as the Kootenay and Merritt (that is in relation to other industries).

Heart Transplant Man Dies But 'Operation Not At Fault'

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—John Stuckwisch, the world's 12th heart transplant patient, died Tuesday night. Doctors said all elements existing prior to surgery caused his death.

Stuckwisch, 62, who received his new heart May 7 at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, underwent the third heart transplant operation in five days at the hospital.

Surgeons said he was dying when they implanted the heart of a 32-year-old welder, whose death was ruled a homicide.

Hospital administrator Newell France said:

"Mr. Stuckwisch, ill on admission to St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, improved following the heart transplant but not sufficiently to overcome the diseased processes existing prior to surgery.

"The total cardiac performance remained excellent throughout the post-operative course.

"Death is attributed to progressive liver failure with deepening jaundice and extension of his pre-existing peripheral arterial disease."

INJURED IN FIGHT
Stuckwisch received the heart of Clarence Nicks, 32, who died of injuries suffered in a tavern fight April 23. Police have arrested two men on murder charges.

Dr. Denton Cooley led the surgical team which also performed the other heart transplants at the hospital.

Everett Clark Thomas, 47, of Phoenix, Ariz., was the first heart recipient in Houston. He underwent surgery May 3 and was described as in excellent condition today.

Trudeau Blisters Quebec Idea Of International Relations

MONTREAL (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau Tuesday blistered the theories in international relations held by Premier Daniel Johnson and his constitutional adviser Marcel Faribault.

Mr. Trudeau said Mr. Johnson's theories could lead to the "disintegration" of Canada and Mr. Faribault's to the "disintegration" of major international agencies.

Mr. Faribault later announced his candidacy as a Progressive Conservative for the federal election June 25.

Mr. Johnson believes that Quebec has an international role to fulfil and Mr. Faribault believes the provinces must become full members of great international organizations like the United Nations and UNESCO.

Mr. Trudeau said the consequence of Mr. Faribault's theory is that international organizations like the United Nations and UNESCO would well beyond measure until they disintegrated. The 10 provinces could each send a representative in addition to Canada's.

That meant Quebec could act as a sovereign state and each province could set up its own foreign policy in those fields within its jurisdiction, ignoring Ottawa.

SEVERAL POLICIES
Mr. Trudeau said in an off-the-cuff French speech the first consequence of this theory is that Canada could have several foreign policies, each contradicting the other.

"If Canada has several contradictory foreign policies, that means the disintegration of Canada because then one country speaks with several voices."

FIVE BULLETS IN HEAD

Didn't Know He'd Been Shot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An Alaskan public health official was shot five times in the head early Monday, a physician disclosed Tuesday, but did not seek aid until 15 hours later because he thought he had only been nudged.

Dr. Ralph B. Williams, 57, of Juneau, director of laboratory services for the Alaska health and welfare department, was listed in serious condition Tuesday night at St. Mary's Hospital.

An attending physician said he and police pieced together this story:

Williams was walking home Sunday night and apparently was accosted by two men. He said he was knocked to the ground, but could not remember what else happened.

Williams hailed a cab and was taken back to his hotel.

X-RAYS TELL STORY
The next day Williams saw a doctor to treat what he thought were oozing abrasions.

The doctor said he, too, first thought his patient had been beaten only, and sent him for x-rays which disclosed the bullet wounds from a small-calibre weapon.

The doctor said one bullet entered beneath the left eye and lodged in Williams' neck between the jugular vein and carotid artery. Another entered the top of his head and lodged in the right lobe of the brain. A third bullet penetrated the roof of the mouth—the gun having apparently been put in Williams' mouth—and lodged at the base of the skull. A fourth bullet entered near the side of the right eye and came to rest where the jawbone attaches to the skull. The fifth shot entered under the right nostril and went into the hard palate.

None of those bullets could have killed him," said the doctor.

"It's a most amazing thing."

Perrault To Oppose Douglas

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ray Perrault announced today his resignation as British Columbia Liberal leader and his plans to run in the June 23 federal election against T. C. Douglas of the New Democratic party.

Mr. Perrault, a North Vancouver public relations man, said he would seek the Liberal nomination in Burnaby-Seymour at a nomination convention Thursday night.

Burnaby-Seymour is the riding in which the national NDP leader also is a candidate.

Redistribution put 8,000 voters from Mr. Perrault's provincial North Vancouver-Capilano constituency into Burnaby-Seymour.

Mr. Perrault, 42, became the youngest political leader in the province in 1959 when he was elected party leader—but without a seat. At that time the Liberals held only two seats in the legislature in which Premier W. A. C. Bennett's Social Credit party held sway since 1952.

But the following year Mr. Perrault took on Norman Steacy, the Social Credit government's agriculture minister, and beat him in the Vancouver-area riding.

That year the Liberals increased their number in the provincial House to four.

'Perfect' Rescue For 47 Miners

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP)—A Nova Scotia Mines Department inspector began an investigation today into the cause of a rockfall which trapped 47 miners in the No. 2 shaft of the Drummond Coal Co.'s mine for several hours Tuesday.

Dr. J. P. Nowlan, deputy mines minister, announced Tuesday night the investigation was a "normal procedure" and there would be no formal inquiry.

The men were lifted from the pit through a 600-foot air shaft during a four-hour rescue operation described as "perfect" by mine owner Henry R. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson said following an inspection tour of the site today that he expects to resume normal operations Thursday.

One hundred and fifteen men are employed in the mine, which supplies coal to the Nova Scotia Power Commission's generating station in neighboring Trenton.

Mr. Thompson said in an interview public reaction to the incident was "embarrassing" to the miners.

"They realized there was no danger in connection with the incident and that it would be only a matter of a short time before they would be taken to the surface."

The reaction of the miners was natural, he said. "They knew the air shaft was being kept in repair for such an emergency and that they would only have to wait a short time for their trip from the mine."

Mr. Thompson said he was grateful for the offers of assistance which poured in from neighboring communities following the report that men were trapped.

'Poor People' Enter Shanties

WASHINGTON (AP)—With their city of shanties nearly one-third finished, about 300 members of the Poor People's Campaign have moved into it in a festive mood.

As they spent their first chilly night in Resurrection City, U.S.A., hundreds of other destitute Americans were in caravans heading for Washington from the South, Midwest, and Northeast.

"It really looks good," said a volunteer carpenter as he surveyed neat rows of triangular plywood shanties near the Lincoln Memorial. A single light bulb gleamed through the clear plastic skylight in each shanty.

Spectacular Blaze Cuts Boston Bridge

BOSTON (AP)—A spectacular five-alarm fire destroyed the centre section of a 300-foot long bridge over South Boston railway freight yards today dropping tons of iron girders and concrete onto tracks below.

Mid-May Blizzard Socks Into Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A mid-May blizzard took eastern Newfoundland off guard early today causing traffic tie-ups. St. John's received 6.3 inches of snow, with two inches remaining on the ground, temperatures in the low 30s, and winds up to 50 miles an hour.

'AN AMAZING THING'

The doctor said he, too, first thought his patient had been beaten only, and sent him for x-rays which disclosed the bullet wounds from a small-calibre weapon.

The doctor said one bullet entered beneath the left eye and lodged in Williams' neck between the jugular vein and carotid artery. Another entered the top of his head and lodged in the right lobe of the brain. A third bullet penetrated the roof of the mouth—the

Hanoi Toughens Terms In Paris

Kennedy Wins, Changes Aim

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Senator Robert F. Kennedy marched to victory in Nebraska's Democratic presidential primary and turned his campaign guns today toward Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey—with a suggestion that battered rival Senator Eugene J. McCarthy join him.

The New York senator received 53 per cent of the vote for a majority over McCarthy, President Johnson and write-ins for Humphrey.

McCarthy, with 31 per cent of the ballots, absorbed his second defeat by Kennedy in a week. Kennedy won the Indiana primary March 31. But the Minnesota senator said he would campaign through the primaries ahead and was not interested in an alliance with Kennedy.

Richard M. Nixon collected 70 per cent of the Republican vote—a victory of greater magnitude than he had anticipated.

Governor Ronald Reagan of California, who polled a surprising 22 per cent, said he was gratified and would not refuse the Republican nomination if it were offered.

But Reagan said he is not going to become a candidate, and will not campaign for the nomination.

Primaries in the U.S. are held to test public support of politicians seeking presidential nominations. The candidates are chosen at national nominating conventions. Some states have laws committing state party delegations to primary winners on the first ballot at conventions. This is not the case in Nebraska. However, Tuesday's primary also included voting for convention delegates.

Write-in votes are given to candidates not on the ballot. Sixteen Republican nominating votes were at stake in separate balloting, and candidates who favor Nixon won all of them.

The Democratic delegate picture was more clouded, with candidates listed as uncommitted or pledged to Johnson crowding the lengthy ballot.

Twenty-eight Democratic nominating votes were at stake, two more go automatically to the national committee members, who favor Humphrey.

Halt To Firing Sought In 'Neutral' Zone

PARIS (AP)—North Vietnamese demanded in talks here today that the United States and its allies halt all attacks across the so-called demilitarized zone into North Vietnamese territory and withdraw from the area.

Ambassador Xuan Thuy in a statement directed at U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman specifically demanded that the United States stop all firing of artillery across the six-mile-wide zone separating the two Vietnams.

A North Vietnamese spokesman said Thuy linked the demand with North Vietnam's insistence that the United States must halt the rest of the bombing of the North and stop "all other acts of war" before the talks here can go on to other issues.

The United States and South Vietnam have forces just south of the zone to counter North Vietnamese Army regulars who U.S. and South Vietnamese commanders say infiltrate through the zone and around its western end via Laos.

In his opening remarks at the first full session Monday, Harriman called for a restoration of the zone as a non-military buffer zone.

OFF UNTIL SATURDAY
The two sides met for 3½ hours today and Harriman described the discussions as extensive and active. He did not elaborate. The negotiators decided not to meet again until Saturday.

Harriman spoke first today for an hour and Thuy for an hour and a half, each time including translations.

While the North Vietnamese briefing was under way on the Left Bank of the Seine, an American report to correspondents by spokesman William Jordan was given at the U.S. Embassy.

Harriman, Jordan said, told Thuy that there are "some specific and urgent steps which are vital to peace, and on which it should be possible to agree."

Harriman, in renewing his proposal of Monday that the warring countries could make a demonstration of peaceful interest by restoring peace to the demilitarized zone, said:

"Certainly one of the prime steps toward the strict observance of the military provisions of the 1954 Geneva accords should be to restore the demilitarized zone in its original and proper status. We agree on the legal existence of that zone and its prescribed boundaries."

"We propose that we agree now on making it function the way it should. Are you prepared to join in achieving this? The prompt restoration of the demilitarized zone as a buffer is an essential step."

Harriman said that the North Vietnamese on Monday referred to the 1962 agreement on Laos, and he proposed "that we agree now that all parties should comply meticulously with the 1962 agreement on Laos."

"Let us call upon the two co-chairmen (Britain and the Soviet Union) and the three countries which are members of the International Control Commission (India, Canada and Poland) to make prompt arrangements to assure that these accords are respected."

'Ferocious War' Conducted

Following Harriman in the meeting, Thuy accused the United States of aggression and waging "a ferocious war against the people of South Vietnam."

After giving his version of the history of the war, Thuy said, his spokesman reported that President Johnson's March 3 limitation on the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam had failed to respond fully to Hanoi's call for an end to all bombing and other acts of war.

The spokesman quoted Thuy as saying his government, nevertheless, showed its goodwill by agreeing to send representatives for talks and then proposing the time and date.

It was due to this action, he said, the conversations were able to start here.

Whether any progress can be made, Thuy said, now depends on the United States. The world is waiting to see, he said, whether American acts will carry out expressed American desires for peace. He said he had found in Harriman's basic statement Monday "no new elements... in a sense favorable to peace."

He accused the United States of clinging to aggressive intentions, distorting facts and trying to deceive world opinion.

School Strike Limited

VANCOUVER (CP)—Striking janitors and custodian-engineers at Vancouver secondary schools have called off plans to extend picket lines to elementary schools today.

The International Union of Operating Engineers announced Tuesday night that picketing would be extended, following breakdown in talks with the school board.

However, at an executive meeting early this morning the union decided to continue picketing only secondary schools.

Both sides in the dispute say the sole area of disagreement is wages. The union rejected a conciliation board's recommendation of a $21-a-month increase retroactive to January. The union is asking for $25.

Arthur Johnson, school board chairman, said Tuesday it might not be possible to keep the schools open if the strike continues.

"It is not only because we will not have the services of the engineer-custodians, but a good many people will not cross the picket lines," he said. "Garbage collectors, for instance, are falling to collect garbage. We don't expect them to."

Officials said attendance at the 22 secondary schools improved Tuesday over Monday, when several hundred were absent. But the litter problem had become acute, they added.

While the North Vietnamese briefing was under way on the Left Bank of the Seine, an American report to correspondents by spokesman William Jordan was given at the U.S. Embassy.

Stanfield Here May 24

Progressive Conservative Party leader Robert Stanfield will speak in Kelowna May 24.

The announcement was made Tuesday at the Conservatives' Okanagan-Boundary nominating meeting in Penticton.

Mr. Stanfield is scheduled to make "a major policy speech" here.

E. Davie Fulton, former justice and works minister in the Conservative government, indicated Tuesday night that David Pugh may become minister of veteran affairs if the Tories win the June 25 federal election.

Mr. Fulton was speaking at the Conservative meeting which nominated Mr. Pugh as a candidate in Okanagan-Boundary, a constituency he has represented since 1958.

Mr. Fulton said Mr. Pugh was named chairman of the Conservative caucus committee on veterans' affairs immediately prior to the election call by Prime Minister Trudeau.

David Pugh, 42, is a former member of the House of Commons and was a member of the cabinet in the Conservative government of Lester B. Pearson.

Enough Coloreds In U.K. Says City's Tory Leader

Britain's second largest city called on the Labour government today to stop any more colored immigrants from coming to live and work in it. Leaders of the Conservative-controlled Birmingham council made the appeal, arguing that the city already has insufficient work, housing and schools for its population of more than 1,000,000. "Enough is enough," said Alderman Frank Griffin, the local Conservative leader. Birmingham is the heart of an industrial zone that has drawn many thousands of immigrants from the West Indies, India and Pakistan. It was in Birmingham last month that Conservative Enoch Powell called for a total halt in colored immigration in an inflammatory speech.

Geoffrey A. H. Pearson, son of the former prime minister and deputy head of the United Nations division of the department of external affairs, said Tuesday Canada should advocate recognition of only one China in the UN—the one on the mainland—that has its government in Peking.

The British government Tuesday denied a statement attributed to Cyrus Eaton, the Nova Scotia-born Cleveland industrialist, that it is supplying $100,000,000 in credit to help Cuba build a cement plant. The denial was issued by a spokesman for the British embassy in Washington, who said the British foreign office had authorized the denial.

Mayor Alan Emmott has formally quit the New Democratic Party, provincial party headquarters revealed Tuesday in Burnaby. Bert Hill, aide to national NDP leader T. C. Douglas, said Mr. Emmott sent provincial headquarters a letter stating he was not going to renew his NDP membership, said Hill. Mr. Emmott has opposed NDP plans to enter civic politics in British Columbia.

In New Westminster Clive Lytle, New Democratic Party candidate for New Westminster, Tuesday called for a reform of Canada's election system. Speaking to a meeting at the city's NDP headquarters Mr. Lytle suggested lowering the voting age to 18, fixing election dates every four years, imposing statutory limitations on campaign expenditures, providing absentee ballots and including party affiliation on ballots.

Archie Brown, 40 of Prince George, died in hospital Tuesday, following a fight in a city beer parlor last Saturday. Edward Wilson, 37, has been charged with criminal negligence in the incident and released on his own recognizance, pending a preliminary hearing June 18.

T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said in Castlegar Canada is the only country in the western world without a capital gains tax. Mr. Douglas called for implementation of the Carter royal commission report on the Canadian tax structure. Mr. Douglas, on a tour of the interior, British Columbia, said the Liberal government's tax policy is "soak the poor and absolve the rich," putting a burden on lower and middle income groups while $5,000,000,000 of income in 1964 had little or no tax paid on it.

Police in Brandon, Man., charged James Gordon Campbell, 32, of Brandon with non-capital murder Tuesday in the shooting death of his wife Dorothy. Police chief A. C. Goucher said Mrs. Campbell, mother of five children, was shot twice with a .22-calibre rifle. Campbell, a Brandon fireman, will appear in court Friday.

Donald Ralph Metz, 18, was fined $150 in Edmonton Tuesday and his licence suspended for six months after he was convicted of driving while impaired by the hallucinogenic drug LSD. Blood analysis showed Metz had taken the drug.

Thomas Herman, 77, of West Vancouver, the former head of the North Vancouver detachment of the old B.C. Provincial Police Force died in hospital following a lengthy illness. He retired when the force was disbanded in 1950. He also served with the force in Nanaimo, Kamloops, Vancouver, Abbotsford, Powell River and Richmond.

A lock of Lord Nelson's hair, perhaps the only one in existence, was sold at auction Tuesday for $450. A London dealer, acting for a private purchaser, bought the hair at Sotheby's from heirs of an officer named Rotely, who served with Nelson aboard HMS Victory in the triumph over the combined French-Spanish fleet at Trafalgar in 1805. Nelson was wounded in the fighting and died on his ship.

Funeral services for Blair Fraser, Ottawa editor of Maclean's magazine, will be held in Ottawa Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in Dominion Chalmers United Church. Mr. Fraser was drowned on a canoe trip Sunday in Algonquin provincial park, northwest of Ottawa.

Dr. Gordon Shrum, chancellor of Simon Fraser University, said Monday Canada's school system is based on an agricultural society where students leave school early each day to help with the farm chores and have a long summer vacation to bring in the crop. "But we should be thinking of a seven-day week and a 10 or 11-month operation," he told the annual meeting of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (Vancouver Section).

British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Tuesday a "mini-election" in the vacant ridings of Oak Bay and Revelstoke-Slocan will likely be held this summer. Mr. Bennett, speaking in Vancouver, declined to say exactly when the election would be called because he said he had not received official resignations from Liberal Alan Macfarlane in Oak Bay and NDP member for Revelstoke-Slocan, Ran Harding.

John Peakes, 37-year-old son of Lieutenant-Governor George Peakes of British Columbia, has been nominated as a Conservative to run in the June 25 federal election in Vancouver Quadra.

Children, Outsiders Vote In Nominating Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Reports of children and outsiders casting ballots in local nominating meetings have raised some eyebrows here, but both Liberal and Conservative officials say they have no plans to clamp down.

Only the NDP of the three largest parties has country-wide regulations on voting eligibility. The Liberals and Conservatives traditionally have left this to the riding association to a large extent.

The NDP has a minimum age of 18 years.

"We try to keep the teenyboppers within the youth groups," says the party's federal secretary, Cliff Scotton. Senator Richard Stanbury, president of the National Liberal Federation, says his party has pressed local associations to adopt age and residence restrictions and most have done so.

But the federation can't "move in" on those who have not, he says.

"It's true that some ridings will mess up the situation. But our attitude is that if we had central control it would only be messed up by experts. "We'd just as soon the amateurs messed it up."

Court Told Broom Used In Assault

VANCOUVER (CP)—A crown witness, testifying Tuesday at a preliminary hearing on kidnapping and assault charges against a 24-year-old man, said he had used a stiff-bristled broom on the body of James Cannan, 20.

Denis Lorne Gaba, 24, told the hearing in magistrate's court that he had scrubbed Cannan in the clubhouse of the Satan's Angels motorcycle club.

Charged with kidnapping Cannan and with indecent assault are David Black, 24, Herbert Spier, 21, Victor Gregory, 25, Charles Dumont, 27, William Arthur Cross, 23, Ernest Small, 28, Williams Binns, 20, Laverne Schmidt, 25, Gary Wilbur, 22, and Robert Pearson, 17.

Gaba testified earlier that he was originally charged but that there was a stay of proceedings issued after he appeared in the case as a crown witness.

Gaba has asked for protection of the Canada Evidence Act in giving testimony that might incriminate him.

He testified under cross-examination Tuesday that he took part in harassment of a group of hippies at a cafe and that he was the one who caught a hippie fleeing from the cafe.

Gaba said earlier that he, Schmidt, Aubrey and Wilbur were the ones in the cafe and the men who forcibly took the hippie to the clubhouse. He said once inside the clubhouse the hippie was ordered to strip and a plastic fireman's hat was placed on his head.

Gaba said the hat was set afire by Black.

The hearing continues.

Lack Of Winches Halts Production

Lack of proper winches has halted production at Kelowna Machine Works.

R. E. Wiens, marketing vice-president, said strikes in Vancouver and the U.S. have forced the company to lay off about 50 men.

"We were supplied from Vancouver, but the firm has been on strike for two months," he said. "We changed the design to use a winch made in the U.S., but now this plant is on strike."

Mr. Wiens said the company has orders to fill and can produce machines except for installing a winch.

"We are now investigating another firm," he said, "but there would still be a time lapse while we re-design the machine to use a different winch. This is causing definite problems. We have orders but we can't fill them."

Mr. Wiens said the situation is difficult for the men because it is not their fault the strike is on and parts are unavailable. The company designs and produces equipment to move timber in bush country.

Mr. Wiens said the first shipment of a machine to Australia is just about ready to be sent to Vancouver to be loaded on a ship. He said details have almost been completed for this.

Jaycees Elect Executive June Installation Planned

Wilbur Wostradowski was elected Monday as president of the Kelowna and District Junior Chamber of Commerce. Past president is Mario Tahara.

Other officers elected were Mel Loyt, vice-president; Dale Smith and Jim Gordon directors; and Dennis Storey, secretary. The new executive will be installed June 15.

At the meeting Monday seven new members were inducted, bringing the total to 60 for the year. Accepted as members were Joe Galareanu, Donald Burch, Robert Parmenter, Dick Baak, David Shore, Norman Bourber and L. J. Smolik.

Recently elected Okanagan-Kamloops district president, Dick Sharples of Kelowna, and Eric Hamm, of Kamloops, Central B.C. and Yukon district president, spoke to the new members.

You are joining an association which enjoys the respect of citizens from all over the world," Mr. Sharples said. "You will be taught civic responsibilities and given opportunities to exercise those responsibilities."

"You are not joining a service club," Mr. Hamm said, "you are joining an association which has for first object the training of tomorrow's leaders."

"If you respect the Jaycee image, you can be sure you will have a strong voice in your community."

Colin Day of Kelowna, was given the "unanimous support" of the Kelowna Jaycee unit in his campaign for vice-president, B.C. and Yukon Jaycees. Mr. Day is chairman of the provincial convention to be held in Kamloops.

Jaycee senator Dave Kenney praised Mr. Day for his nine years of service with Jaycees, particularly for the award he received, as 1967 outstanding district president.

There When I Went In' City Driver Tells Police

A man who left his car parked in front of a downtown office while he made a quick trip inside to pick up some papers, came out to find his 1968 model car was gone.

Jack Lund, 427 West Ave., reported the theft of the vehicle minutes after he discovered the loss at 9:30 a.m. today. The car is a white Dodge with B.C. license number 564-587. Mr. Lund left the keys in the car while he went into the Regatta City Press 578 Pandosy St.

Len Campbell of Orchard Hill Service, Westbank, told police at 8:35 a.m. Tuesday, a car on his lot had been broken into and a spare tire and Jack taken. The loss is valued at $80.

Marvin Nielsen, 1864 Harvey Ave., reported at 11:10 a.m. Tuesday, his car was entered and damage done to the dash created are three P-1 to P-3 zones for institutional, park and administration use.

The bylaw covers adoption of a new schedule to define the portions of the city to be covered by the new zones.

Foster Memorial Speedway, Highway 97 south, had been broken into and food taken.

New Zones Law Nears

A bylaw to change certain city commercial zones and regulations was given the first two readings by the city council Monday night.

The changes were considered at a public zoning hearing April 29.

Eliminated are the old C-1, C-2 and C-3 zones, which are to be replaced by C-1 through C-6 classifications. Also to be created are three P-1 to P-3 zones for institutional, park and administration use.

The bylaw covers adoption of a new schedule to define the portions of the city to be covered by the new zones.

TWO GROUPS

Travel Experts To Visit Kelowna

Kelowna will be invaded Thursday by two separate touring groups—70 travel agents and 30 travel counsellors.

The travel agents, 32 from nine European countries and the remainder from California are part of a joint department of travel industry - Canadian Pacific Airlines promotion.

The 30 travel counsellors are hostesses from the B.C. Ferries and the B.C. Travel Bureau.

Representatives will be included from the Vancouver, Victoria and San Francisco offices of the travel bureau.

The purpose of both trips is to show B.C. attractions to the visitors, who, in turn, may attract tourists to the Okanagan. Chamber of commerce representatives will meet both groups.

The travel agents will arrive by bus at 1 p.m. and will leave the same day on the evening flight to Vancouver. They will be taken on a tour of the city and a city-chamber dinner will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the Capri.

The visit here by U.S. and European travel agents is the first time any Canadian province has embarked upon an off-shore promotion.

The effects are expected to be felt when the agents return home and sell the idea of a visit to B.C.

The Californians are particularly interested in B.C. travel possibilities, because of President Johnson's plea to Americans to stay on the North American continent this year.

The travel agents will arrive in Vancouver Sunday to begin their provincial tour. They will return home Friday.

The travel counsellors will arrive in Kelowna by coach at 6 p.m. after being met in Penticton by visitor and convention co-ordinator W. J. Stevenson. They will be booked at the Capri and have dinner at the Eldorado Arms at 7 p.m. The visitors will be given tours in the evening and before their departure at 10:30 a.m. Friday.

The city's zoning board of appeal will soon have a new name.

Under a revised section of the Municipal Act the group will now be called the board of variance, as it will in all B.C. communities with fewer than 25,000 residents.

The board will consist of one person appointed by the council, one by the lieutenant-governor-in-council and one by the 14th annual convention in Ottawa May 8. He was with the Royal Bank of Canada in Kelowna for several years and is currently executive vice-president of a pipeline firm in Montreal.

A supervisory meeting of Canadian Pacific Airlines is being held today at the Capri Hotel. The meeting is not open to the public.

Magistrate D. M. White had a ready answer for a man who asked to have his appearance in court kept out of the papers. "Like Bennett said about Gagliardi, we can't suppress a good news story," the magistrate replied.

Members of the Kelowna and Rutland chambers of commerce are expected to attend a meeting of the Okanagan-Similkameen Associated Chambers of Commerce in Keremeos Thursday at 6:30 p.m. Speaker for the meeting, at the Keremeos Hotel, will be Jeff Boys, commissioner of Indian affairs for B.C.

Guest speaker at the Rotary luncheon Tuesday was Frank Orme, district superintendent of schools (District 23). He outlined progress of the Okanagan Regional College and explained courses that will be available.

FASTER PACE
A faster pace has been recorded in the seasonal rise of Okanagan Lake. The level Monday was 99.70 feet, compared with 99.50 feet the previous week. The level at the same time last year was 98.61 feet.

Figures Reflect Building Boom

House and apartment construction in Kelowna to date is well above the same period last year.

Figures released by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation show a total of 161 units were started here during the first three months of this year.

Last year there were 109 units started from January to the end of March.

A total of 90 units were completed, compared with 34 completed last year.

There are 218 dwellings under construction now, compared with 159 in the same three-month period last year.

A total of 4,073 units were started throughout B.C. compared with 2,517 last year.

Completions in the same period were 4,688, compared with last year's 2,971. In addition, 8,382 units were under construction March 31 in B.C., compared with 6,633 on the same date in 1967.

Kelowna continues to lead the Okanagan in the number of starts.

Full Traffic Signal Control Possible At East Intersection

The Highway 97-Burich Road intersection may soon be controlled by a standard traffic signal.

However, the city council Monday night delayed for two weeks a final decision on whether to share the cost with the department of highways.

City officials are planning a trip to Victoria next week at which time the matter will be discussed. The estimated cost is $1,000, with the city paying half.

The intersection is now regulated by a pedestrian-controlled signal, which flashes and stops east-west traffic only when a pedestrian wishes to cross.

District highways department engineer A. L. Freebairn, in a letter to the council, said the senior traffic engineer agreed with the need for a standard signal.

The senior engineer said: "Traffic volumes at this intersection fill signal warrants. We are agreeable to convert the existing pedestrian signal to a full signal, with detection on the cross street provided the recommendations contained in our letter of April 3, 1968, regarding this intersection are carried out."

"We will require the agreement of the city to pay 50 per cent of the estimated cost of $1,000 before proceeding."

Commenting on a frontage road in the same area, the senior engineer said: "I strongly recommend that the frontage road east of Burich on the north side of the highway be eliminated as a frontage road for the following reasons:

● If my memory is correct there are no other businesses on the five-lane section of Highway 97 to which entrance and exit is restricted by their being on a frontage road.

● This section of 97 is becoming even more so, a commercial strip route and traffic control restrictions on access and egress should be as uniform as possible throughout.

● The intersection of the frontage road and Burich Road at the Imperial Oil corner will never work properly and will become a source of increasing confusion, conflict and hazard. Frontage roads should have large bulb connections with cross roads at the intersection of frontage and cross roads is a sufficient distance from the intersection of main and cross roads.

"Therefore I recommend that Arena Motors be allowed two entrances and that the Imperial Station have only one entrance near the east side of the property. The existing curb should be either heavily outlined with delineator posts or else be replaced by normal height guard rails. Guard rails should also extend down each side of each entrance as far as the property line."

"On the south side of Highway 97 the frontage road is not quite so much a problem, as it is a little further from the through lanes. However, the access recommended by the city, in front of the Mohawk Service is too close to the triangular island in that corner, and I recommend no change from the situation."

Caravan Through Prairies Proves B.C. Apples Big Hit

A ten day "caravan" through-out Prairie markets by five key management personnel of the B.C. tree fruit industry was a "resounding success" says Eric Moore, general manager, B.C. Tree Fruits Limited.

"Without exception the produce distributive trades in various key centres visited lauded the quality of B.C. apples this past season. Contacts were established with all major segments of the distributive trades, and discussions on the crop prospects and marketing plans for the 1968 crop season proved mutually beneficial," said Mr. Moore.

A most enthusiastic reception was given to the new polishing process which was used on 60 per cent to 65 per cent of the 1967 apple crop. When told the B.C. tree fruit industry will be able to wax 95 per cent of the 1968 crop, the distributive trades were most receptive," said Mr. Moore.

Moore, speaking of a market which alone traditionally buys almost half the B.C. apple crop. "B.C. apples this past season have enjoyed the enviable reputation of being the finest on the North American continent. Firm, realistic pricing enabling the grower to receive fair return for his labor, and as long as B.C. apples are available there are virtually no other apples on the Western Canadian market, are mute testimony to the vastly superior quality we offered," he said.

Further tribute was paid to the B.C. tree fruit industry when it was asked to participate in a produce handling course, to be conducted under the auspices of Manitoba producer, wholesaler and government bodies. In Winnipeg at the end of May B.C. Tree Fruits Limited will conduct the section of the course dealing with all aspects of deciduous

Kelowna Motorist Fails In Bid To Defend Himself

A Kelowna man failed in his attempt to defend himself on a speeding charge in magistrate's court today.

Jerry Scheltgen was found guilty and fined $35.

The only other case on the docket was a charge of failing to stop at a stop sign. Thomas Reuce, Westbank, pleaded guilty and was fined $250. He was involved in an accident May 13 at Richter Street and Clement Avenue. The magistrate withheld his driver's licence pending a re-examination.

In the Scheltgen case, four witnesses were called, an RCMP and an auxiliary constable for the Crown, and the two passengers in the Scheltgen vehicle.

The auxiliary policeman said he checked the reading of the police car speedometer at the 40 mph sign on the bridge and found it was 47 mph.

The RCMP constable said he paced the Scheltgen vehicle at speeds between 50 to 55 and later the speed was reduced to 46 to 50.

The vehicle was stopped near Abbott Street and Harvey Avenue and the constable found three empty beer bottles on the seat, and said he smelt liquor on the occupants' breaths and from the car.

The court was told Scheltgen picked up the three empties off the road near Penticton. Scheltgen admitted he made $7,000 a year but wanted the bottles to complete cases which his friends used for grocery money.

Scheltgen said he picked his friends up at the Royal Anne Hotel at 9 p.m. for a trip to Penticton but one of his passengers said in his testimony he had never been in the hotel that day. Ritchie said he thought they left for Penticton at 8:30 to 7:30 p.m. None of the three thought the Scheltgen vehicle had been going more than 40 mph during the time it was observed by police.

Magistrate White said he found the police speedometer was more reliable than the one in the Scheltgen vehicle.

COMMON SENSE TIPS

Proper Planning Puts Fun In Vacation

Remember last year's vacation, when nothing seemed to go right and you returned home far more tired than when you left?

Careful preparation before leaving on a vacation will insure few problems both on the vacation and upon the return home.

Wherever people go, a vacation should be the best part of the summer—an escape from the humdrum, everyday routine. To have a relaxing and enjoyable vacation, plans should be made well in advance of departure.

Vacations can often be spoiled by unnecessary problems and anxieties are taken along. Business problems, unfinished odds and ends and worrying about everything that should have been done before leaving.

Taking worries on a vacation is one of seven errors committed by many Kelowna area people in planning and pursuing a vacation.

A vacation is defined as a release or rest from an occupation, business or activity.

Here are several things which should be done in advance.

First, ask a neighbor to keep an eye on your home and hold your mail while you are gone.

Deliveries from the milkman and paper boy should be stopped while you are away and the date of your return should be known to them so service can resume promptly.

Allow at least 24 hours at home before you start work upon your return.

Arrange for inoculations well in advance, to guard against serious illness while on your trip; this gives the inoculations time to take effect and you won't start your trip with a sore arm.

As much information of where you are going on your trip should be obtained before setting out and a good plan of travel stops, destinations to reach each day and routes to be taken should be set down.

Road conditions and the best routes should be checked to avoid delays such as construction, weather, tion areas and poor roads. Much of this information can be obtained from travel folders and tourist pamphlets. Information can also be obtained along the way from service station operators, restaurants and people familiar with roads and conditions in their area.

Tips can be obtained in this manner of short side jaunts to places worth seeing off the beaten path, which could appeal to a tourist's sense of adventure.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police have several tips for people leaving their homes vacant while on vacation.

All signs of vacancy at a house should be eliminated, such as piled newspapers, mail or other indications to criminals the house is not occupied.

"Lawns that are not mowed are a real eye to the occupants are not home," a police spokesman said.

He said break-ins in homes are more prevalent in the summer because of the warm weather.

People are on the move in the summer and so is the criminal element," he said.

The police suggest leaving a small light on to give an indication the house may not be unoccupied.

They also suggested residents notify police of the dates they will be away, so patrols of their homes can be made.

"This further eliminates the possibility of homes being broken into and ransacked. It is most discouraging to return home from a fun-filled vacation to find your possessions stolen," he said.

People always want to take everything they can with them on a trip, but wise packing, taking only necessary items is a much better arrangement.

Packing should depend on the type of vacation planned. Swim outfits and beach wear should be taken if the vacation is to be spent at a lakeshore. Swimsuits and other items are sensible in case the weather doesn't cooperate.

Matching outfits and washing and wear clothing eliminate cleaning expenses and packing too many clothes.

Items such as travel alarm clocks and toilet articles in travel case, sizes eliminates bulkiness and allows room for cameras and other tourist paraphernalia.

Proper health is essential for the full benefit of a vacation. Too much sun, excessive intake of alcoholic beverages and too much physical exercise can spoil a good time. A vacation is a time of relaxation, to take life at a leisurely pace. People who race through a vacation miss more than they see.

Driving on unfamiliar roads means extra caution should be exercised to avoid a mishap.

A vacation may be spoiled by forgetting some simple item. Proper preparation will lead to a happy vacation. The only thing that can disrupt a holiday that can't be controlled is the weather.

Simple preparations can help you have fun.

Have fun.

Nation's Next Government To Have Many New Faces

Whoever forms the next government of Canada, that government will have many new faces. At Ottawa, in the Liberal ranks and those of the opposition, two generations are engaged in a changing of the guard.

This goes farther than a change of leadership. Mr. Pearson will have gone, and that fact in itself affects the rhythm of Canadian politics. But it is among the senior cabinet and shadow-cabinet members that the passing of the old order will be most marked and the difference most dramatically underlined.

Symbol of this change, and perhaps its victim, is Paul Martin, who now goes to the senate and who in a matter of days has passed from an active leadership candidate and a powerful foreign minister, to elder statesman.

It is customary on these occasions to hope that the departing figure will continue to exert his wisdom and his strength in the upper chamber. This we do, that goes without saying. But Paul Martin is not dismissed so easily as that; he is a figure who will deserve more than a passing note when the history of these times is written.

Long before he became secretary of state for external affairs, Mr. Martin played a role, and a powerful role, in Canada's relations with other countries and the United Nations. He groomed himself consciously for this role during all his parliamentary career. The back-bencher who attended the old League of Nations sessions in Geneva became in time the acting leader, and then the leader, of Canada's UN delegation.

Because Paul Martin was a superb politician on the local level some observers were not inclined to give him credit for his achievements as an international figure. But the same patience, tireless affability and hard work which made him unbeatable in the riding of Essex East, served him well as a diplomat.

The Martin combination of old pro's cunning and genuine idealism made him one of the most attractive figures on the international scene. His deeds were formidable. It is almost forgotten that he played a key role in the Korean war settlement. It is acknowledged that Paul Martin, as much as any man, broke the deadlock on memberships at the United Nations. For good or ill, the present large assembly of nations is the result of his diplomacy.

On the domestic scene his imprint was evident, too. He was in his day an extraordinarily hard-working health minister, to give one example. Because his ambition was evident he evoked criticism in many experienced parliament-watchers, but the ambition was reasonable. He knew himself to be a gifted man, a combination of statesman and politician, and he wanted to be first.

He waged a hard, clean campaign for the Liberal leadership but time and the thrust of a new generation had overtaken him. When he realized that the leadership was out of his grasp he bore himself with more than his characteristic aplomb — Martin was graceful in defeat. This newspaper did not support the Martin candidacy. This does not prevent us from saluting him now and acknowledging his great services. This man has deserved well of his country.

Making Own Decisions

It will never happen, says Mr. Marq de Villiers, writing in The Toronto Telegram, but for Canadians to dispense with parliamentary governments and make their own completely democratic decisions on all issues is now feasible.

What Mr. de Villiers has in mind is the issuance to every registered voter of a coded card, to be used in conjunction with electronic voting machines in homes or convenient locations hooked up with central computers.

A cabinet could be retained as an executive arm, supplemented by a legal bureau to put into accepted constitutional shape voting topics submitted by public petition.

Mr. de Villiers thinks this system of mass decision would work satisfactorily: even if the people made mistakes, the mistakes would be their own; if the people voted for more than they were able to pay for at the outset, they would learn better on getting their tax bills; a bill of rights might prevent the exploitation of minorities; persons voting to go to war would automatically be drafted; with participation, citizens would soon develop the expertise necessary for government.

The reason why such a system will never be adopted, the writer says, is that Parliament is a ruling elite, a society structured for its own preservation — "Why should it be expected to suicide just because it is obsolete?"

But somehow, it seems bound to strike most Canadians that there is another reason: that if we were all to vote on every issue according to personal interest — and this certainly would be the inclination — we would soon have not only complete democracy, but complete chaos.

Higher taxes for the rich? Aye! Lower taxes for the rest of us? Aye! Way-paid education to 30, retirement pension at 40? Aye! Get rid of the computer that wrecked the economy?

Perhaps it is not too much to imagine, however, that the day is coming when some selected issues — particularly moral issues — the thoughts of the nation as a whole will be measured electronically.

ANOTHER BIRD WHICH WILL NEVER BE SEEN AGAIN

Gross National Product Shows Amazing Leap In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—A record $20,000,000,000 jump—to $27,300,000,000 from $807,300,000,000—in the U.S. gross national product in the first quarter of 1968 is phenomenal.

If the figure were to be taken at face value, it would mean that the expansion of the American economy in just three months—the expansion alone—would be more than the gross national product of Brazil for an entire year.

It would be the equivalent of creating an economy the size of Belgium's.

The figures cannot be taken at face value, however. At $8,000,000,000 of the "growth" was just inflation. Since the value of the dollar shrank in those three months, it simply took more dollars to measure output.

To assume that inflated figures represent true growth is to delude. It would be the same thing as a carpenter measuring feet with an inch clipped off his ruler, or a butcher weighing meat with his thumb on the scale.

ECONOMISTS DISMAYED

Nevertheless, the $12,000,000,000 real growth still was enormous by any measure. And it came on top of a record long expansion of the U.S. economy. It is clear, however, that economists greeted these figures with chagrin. This is a giant with disorders; with ailments that result from trying to produce beyond its capacity and with failing to watch the signals that tell any growing body to take some medicine or relax or change its way of life.

The same report from the commerce department shows that defence spending once again rose sharply, arousing the suspicion that whatever is said about slowing the rate of military spending, what is done is something different.

The report also disclosed that the surplus in foreign trade was off—a condition that cannot be permitted to continue for long without confidence in the U.S. dollar deteriorating even more.

It showed that consumers were stepping up their commitments, that after prolonged restraint, they were beginning to buy long-postponed needs and luxuries which in the present state of things can only be inflationary.

TAXES THE ANSWER?

The disorders are serious. The return of the consumer to the market comes at a poor time. Ordinarily, economists would welcome consumer buying strength. But now, even after months of consumer restraint, the economy is overheated.

All these disorders, no matter how serious, can be remedied. The first reaction to the latest gross national product figures will be additional pressure for a tax increase. This would transfer buying power from the federal government to the consumer and permit it to pay its bills.

Pressure also will continue for cuts in federal spending. This remedy would have immediate and wholesome financial effects. Remedies also will be sought in an intensification of peace efforts. Peace could result in a large cut in federal spending, thus lessening the threat of more inflation and offering immediate prospects for a reduction in the balance of payments deficit.

New Zealand Goes Dollar

AUCKLAND (CP)—Pounds, shillings and pence will cease to be legal tender in New Zealand after May 31.

New Zealand began the switch to dollars and cents July 10 last and the transition period ends May 31, far earlier than originally expected. The New Zealand dollar is worth $1.20 in Canadian funds.

Australia, which changed over to decimal currency before New Zealand, needed 18 months for the changeover. Profiting from Australian experience, New Zealand introduced various shortcuts and has cut the time to 10½ months with few headaches and little confusion.

Instead of clinging to the old system, New Zealanders took a pride from the start in mastering the decimal currency. It was considered modern and forward-looking to adopt the new system at once and to drop use of the old terms.

The attitude was helped by a comprehensive advance educational campaign in schools, stores and commercial concerns; and by newspaper and television advertising.

USE CONFIDENTLY

People of all ages were handling the new money confidently within a few weeks. The transition could have been ended much sooner but for the time taken to convert cash registers and business machines.

The only remaining substantial use of pounds, shillings and pence is by advertisers who believe a pun on money in those terms will sound smaller to would-be buyers, especially in the case of expensive items like houses or cars.

They can still legally advertise in sterling terms even after the end of the transitional period, but the practice is falling progressively into disfavor. Many people claim that a sterling advertisement is meant to catch the unwary, and are the more wary because of it.

Talent Dazzles At White House

By PHILIP DEANE
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Political scientists have long marvelled at the high proportion of excellent men who reach the American presidency. This year is a vintage year for first rate candidates, one of which might add to the impressive list of great men who have occupied the White House this century. As historians rate them so far, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt rank among the great, with Theodore Roosevelt not far behind; if behind at all, Harry Truman ranks high. Kennedy did not have a chance to fulfill his promise but projections from what he had begun would give him a place of honor. If Lyndon Johnson manages to end the Vietnam war and put some funds into his domestic legislation, he too might one day be given high marks for that legislation and also because he pursued a policy of relaxation with Russia at the height of a war against a communist state. Eisenhower did not do much and probably delayed a rapprochement between Moscow and Washington, but on the other hand, he was not retrogressive; he presided over a pause during which America took stock, stopped fighting the progressive legislation of the preceding 20 years and took the first major steps on the painful road to integration.

Only about Richard Nixon are there doubts among political scientists and historians. Some of these doubts may be misplaced because they do not take into account the fact that so intelligent a man learns from his mistakes and that an intelligent man improves as a statesman in the presidency.

The others are of a calibre which would delight political commentators in any democracy. Rockefeller has a splendid record as governor of a difficult complex state, as a senior official in the State Department, responsible for pioneering policies which have since been adopted or where not adopted—cry out for adoption, notably in Latin America.

Hubert Humphrey could hardly be better qualified. Leaving aside the graceless role he has had to play simply because he is the Vice-President, he can be credited with more seminal political thinking in domestic and foreign policy than any other contemporary American.

Senator Eugene McCarthy is another seminal thinker. He too has been a good executive. Intellectually he is of the very first order and he is proving that with practically no resources he can be politically effective. There have been few, if any, suggestions that he would not make a great president.

Robert Kennedy too had a splendid record while he held power as his brother's principal advisor. Other aspects of his record—his abrasiveness as the counsel for a senate investigation subcommittee, his toughness as a campaign manager—precede his tenure of office and his tenure of office constitutes a most impressive record. Lucky America.

CANADA'S STORY

Manitoba Became Maritime Province

By BOB BOWMAN

It seems strange to think of Manitoba as a "maritime" province, but it is so. New boundaries came into effect for Manitoba, Ontario, and Quebec on May 15, 1912, and Manitoba got 500 miles of seacoast on Hudson Bay, including the ports of Nelson and Churchill.

Manitoba and Ontario had been squabbling about their boundaries from the time Manitoba became a "postage stamp" province in 1870. Its area then was only 11,000 square miles but was enlarged in 1881.

The boundary adjustment in 1912 increased Manitoba's area to nearly 250,000 square miles. It was the result of the bitterly fought "Reciprocity Election" in 1911 when the Conservatives under Sir Robert Borden ended the long regime of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Liberal government.

The idea of reciprocity with the U.S.A. appealed to the prairie provinces which had to buy consumer goods in a tariff-protected market, but sell their products throughout the world in competition with other nations. Sir Robert Borden promised that if his government were elected, he would extend Manitoba's boundary, build a railway to Hudson Bay, and grain elevators at Port William-Port Arthur. The result was that Manitoba elected eight Conservatives and only two Liberals, although the Liberals won most of the seats in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The building of the railway to Hudson Bay began in 1913, and Ontario was given a five mile corridor along the coast so it could also have a railway line to Churchill and Nelson.

NOT AS BAIT!

Sir: I am writing to beg that all cat owners make sure that kittens they give away or sell will not be used as bait in the training of cougar hound pups and dogs.

I do not know the procedure but people who feel that it is an achievement to shoot an unresisting animal that has been freed by dogs are not likely to trouble much about the suffering of a few or many kittens.

People who keep animals also have a responsibility for what happens to them. It is often more merciful to destroy a litter of kittens at birth or keep one when you are not sure of getting a good home for it.

Hawaiian Theme Colors George Pringle Fashions

WESTBANK (Special) — The home economics department of the George Pringle Secondary School presented their annual fashion show on May 8 at 7:30 p.m., in the school gymnasium against the colorful background of a Hawaiian garden. In keeping with the Aloha! theme, the gymnasium was decorated with palm trees, Hawaiian hats, raffia hangings, flowers, posters and the ushers and escorts wore vivid Hawaiian costumes.

Mr. Barwick, principal of George Pringle, acted as master of ceremonies. Mr. Barwick extended a warm welcome to the 500 parents and friends who attended.

At the start of the program, Colleen Stewart presented Miss Carpenter, teacher of home economics, with an orchid corsage, as a token of appreciation from the home economics class.

The first part of the fashion show, featured the dresses constructed by clothing and textiles nine classes and was commented by Anne Bilsland and Debby Toews. The dresses ranged in style from the military look to the dainty party frock but the overall emphasis was on bright colors and comfortable styles. Easy-to-care, washable fabrics predominated in forming the wardrobe of the modern teenager. The commentators pointed out the economy in the making of the dresses.

The guests were particularly delighted by the "Little Sister" models, ranging in age from 1 1/2 years to eight years. Some members of the sewing class had constructed charming dresses for their little sisters who were Sandy Wright, Karen Neufeld, Peggy and Sandra Neufeld, Karen Toews, Denise Louise and Lorette Bourdages. These young ladies quite captivated the audience.

Further in keeping with the theme of the evening, Pat Hamilton danced Lovely Hula Hands which she learned while on a trip to Hawaii.

Somewhat a departure from the fashion show was the demonstration by Darcie Hirschuk and Linda Fenton of the preparation of the delectable Hawaiian treat Pineapple Sandwiches. At the close of the show came the refreshment hour appropriately called at the Punch Bowls. The tables were gay with fruit centerpieces, tasty treats featuring coconut, banana and pineapple leaves, bars and squares, pinwheel sandwiches and huge punch bowls filled with sparkling punch. Presiding at the tables, wearing grass skirts or hostess gowns in brilliant Hawaiian leis were: Marie Formby, Judy Collard, Coralie Collard, Ursula Harsche, Margaret Broadhead and Colleen Stewart. The food had been prepared by the Grade 9, 10, 11 and 12 food students.

The success of the evening resulted from the careful training of the students by Miss E. Carpenter, the assistance of Dione Chmelyk, hostess of the evening; stage assistants, Linda Ruddy, Dan Hebert and Ron Hill and Beverly Greenwood; the help of escorts Larry Mackenzie, Aino Fabian and Peter Murray.

Tickets and publicity were in charge of Susan Horlock, Angela Blank, Lana Bjarnason, Ellen Campbell and Louise MacNeill. The door prize of a fruit bowl centerpiece was won by Mrs. A. Crouch of Westbank. Models for the show were: Susan Ashman, Marie Anne

Bourget, Joady Crouch, Donna retta, Janice Rumley and the next class Jennifer Beet, Susan Desson, Marjorie Gorman, Beverly Greenwood, Karlene Griffin, Roxanna Haskell, Joyce Hewlett, Sherry Ingis, Sharon Kienas, Glennis MacDonald, Sharon Mitchell, Frances Pet-

ANN LANDERS

Give Him The Air He's Bad Company

Dear Ann Landers: I won't sign this letter because I am ashamed, but I hope you will help me. I didn't go to a family reunion tonight because I can hardly see out of one eye. Yesterday my boyfriend hit me.

I am 17 and my boyfriend is 19. I really dig him the most and he is neat in lots of ways, but he has a bad temper. We got into a dumb argument over nothing at all and I jokingly said, "You are stupid!" Suddenly he hauled off and socked me. I must say he was awfully nice about it right after. He went and got me a washcloth and some ice.

He has hit me a couple of times before, but this is the first time he has ever given me a black eye. If my folks knew about this they would make me stop seeing him and I would die of loneliness. Is there any way I can get him to control his temper? — BONNIE

Dear Bonnie: Give Clyde the air—unless, of course, you enjoy shiners, loose teeth and maybe a fractured jaw one of these days. A boy 19 who would treat a girl so shabbily is bad company. Throw him in the tank.

Dear Ann Landers: A neighbor of mine thinks it is perfectly okay to have short trips with a man to whom she is not married. She tells people she is doing his secretarial work, which is a joke. She cannot type or spell and he is a sales manager. When I asked her what kind of secretarial work is required, she says, "I keep his records."

The woman is married to a very nice man. He must be deaf, dumb and blind. Nobody can understand why he lets her get away with this. Our children are 11 and 13 years of age — the same as the children of this travelling "secretary". They are approaching an age when morals are important. All four youngsters have always been good friends but I am beginning to think perhaps I should not allow the friendship to continue. I don't want to be mean, but a woman who behaves in such a shameless manner will undoubtedly influence her children's thinking and I don't want her to influence mine. May I hear from you on this? — AGAINST SIN

Dear Against: Sorry, Lady, but I don't buy your theory. The neighbor's children should not be penalized for the immoral behavior of their mother. It sounds to me as if they are going to have enough heartache without being shunned by their friends. A little compassion can go a long way in a situation such as this. Try it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a career girl who swore off serious entanglements when a gentleman with whom I went for four years literally stood me up at the church.

I met a very attractive man at a respectable swimming club several weeks ago and we hit it off together immediately. He was divorced and friendly and attentive. The problem—he can consume a staggering quantity of liquor without showing it, and then all of a sudden he passes out cold.

The first time this occurred I was certain he had had a heart attack. What worries me to death is that he insists on driving — drunk or sober — and it is impossible to tell when he has made the transition. I don't want to insult him and insist on driving, yet I'm afraid one day he will drive us both into the Hudson River.

What do you suggest? — CHICKEN

Dear Chick: Since the guy obviously drinks like a fish, tell him you'll swim with him but you won't drive with him. And make it stick. Better he should be insulated than you should be dead.

Dear Ann Landers: I think you are all wet about telephone etiquette. According to you a person should always identify himself when he makes a telephone call. I say it is nobody's business who is calling except the person to whom the call is placed. Especially do I hate it when some little kid says, "Who is this?" — forgetting the "please."

Another beef: I am an executive and I frequently call other business executives and they call me. Some of the big shots are too important to place their own calls. They have their secretaries do it. When I get a call from a secretary who says, "Mr. Whatchamacallit wants to speak to you," I always say, "Well, tell him to call me then" and I hang up.

You are getting dumber by the day, Ann Landers. Why don't you retire? — BACK BAY COLONEL

Dear Back: You sound like a terribly sweet man. Call me up sometime.

U.S. Teen-Agers Spend Lavishly

NEW YORK (AP)—Teen-age girls in the U.S. last Christmas spent $474,328,000 on gifts for family and friends, a survey by Seventeen magazine showed.

Of the total, $324,624,000 was spent on gifts for the family, while $149,704,000 went for their friends.

The magazine's survey tested the gift-buying pulse of the 12-19 age group. Girls between 13 and 19, based on response to a questionnaire from the publication's consumer panel.

The survey showed the girls spent more money, on the average, for gifts for their male friends. The average gift for their beaus—mostly colognes or sweaters—cost $10.70. Mothers rated next, with gifts—perfumes, china, silver or glassware—averaging $10.34. Fathers ran third, with gifts costing an average $8.11, mostly colognes, ties and socks.

The girls themselves received a sack-load of gifts. They received 7,800,000 skirts, 5,100,000 slips, 7,100,000 stockings, 7-100,000 perfume gifts, 5,100,000 earrings, 5,900,000 stationery gifts and 5,800,000 records. The girls tended to ask specifically for the gift they wanted.

Trembling Unmarried Mother Makes A Plea To Royal Probe

REGINA (CP) — Single women who have children should not be forced to prove the identity of the father to get support money, an unmarried mother told the royal commission on the status of women.

Her voice trembling with emotion, Sherrie Tutt said Canadian law places the burden of proving paternity on the woman if she wishes financial help. But paternity could only rarely be proved, if the father did not admit it.

"In Scandinavia the woman has only to name the man and he has to prove he is not the father, if he wishes to escape paying some support," she said.

Miss Tutt, 32, a registered nurse who has a six-year-old daughter and twin sons aged two, received an enthusiastic ovation from an audience of 150 women and nine men at the end of her moving appeal for a better deal for unmarried mothers.

She said later in an interview that she introduces herself as miss "not because I am courageous but because I find in the long run that being honest is easier."

BURST INTO TEARS

An attractive brunette, she burst into tears following her presentation to the commission.

She said she had made her public appeal because she feels strongly that pregnant girls need more information about their position to help them decide what should be done with the child.

About 3,300 single girls would find themselves pregnant in Canada in 1968, she said, and most of these wouldn't be able to make their decision on a rational basis.

Too often unmarried mothers had no idea of their child's chances of being adopted. In Quebec, for example, the chances that a Roman Catholic child would be adopted were slim because there aren't enough adoptive Roman Catholic parents to go around.

"Girls also need to have a better idea about what society is going to say about them," she said.

REACTION NO PROBLEM

"I thought the reaction of everybody around me would be killing but I found that was the least of my problems. People aren't so awful as we think."

Miss Tutt said she first planned to put her children up for adoption but when they were born "I realized I could no more give them away than fly to the moon."

"That decision was right for me. It is not right for everybody and girls should be able to make a well-informed and free choice whether they want to adopt the child, keep it, or have it adopted."

Under present Canadian welfare policy of encouraging single girls to put their children up for adoption, only about 20 per cent of illegitimate children remain with their natural mothers.

"What is wrong now is that the decision is forced on them by others."

Miss Tutt, supported the last few years by her parents, said much of the reason why she gave up nursing was that she couldn't find or afford proper day care for her children.

After paying the costs of day care, she found she had only about $4 of her daily nursing salary left. She also worried about having so little time with her youngsters.

She suggested that more employees offer part-time work to mothers and that low-cost community dwellings be set up to house all families of single parents.

These community dwellings would provide cheap housing and could include day care centres run on a co-operative basis by the participants. Miss Tutt said society must realize that the problem of illegitimacy is going to continue despite improvements in birth control measures.

INDIAN'S LAMENT

And The Little Girl Cried

REGINA (CP) — The six-year-old girl became tearful and refused to eat when the young couple told her they were all going to the courthouse to sign her adoption papers.

Two or three days later she told them why. "But I'm Indian," she cried. "I didn't want you to find out."

It had never occurred to the little girl that her adoptive parents knew. She was afraid they would not want her when she saw the information on the adoption papers.

The incident is part of the short history of the Adopt Indian and Metis (AIM) program, set up by the Saskatchewan government a year ago.

The two-year pilot project seeks to find homes for Indian children and Metis, those of mixed Indian and white parentage, who are wards of the provincial welfare department.

Concentrated in the southwest part of Saskatchewan, AIM is the first program with Indian children as its target. It is under the direction of Frank Dornstauder, a 32-year-old social worker who has been a department supervisor since 1964.

"Children six and under were the best range for us," he said. "These kids were already a community responsibility."

The department had a catalogue of 150 children suitable for inclusion in the program when it was started.

"Most were kids you wouldn't normally think of putting up for adoption," he said. "The minority of them were infants."

"Some might have grown up on the reserve until they were three, four or five years old, or the parents might have abandoned them."

These children would be hard to place, even if they were white-skinned. Some came from unwed mothers, but these created the least problems.

"There's no Indian orientation in these children," Mr. Dornstauder said. "The only difference when they grow older will be skin pigmentation."

Results of the program have been gratifying.

Since it began, the number of adoptions of Indian and Metis children has nearly tripled in the project area. Over the province as a whole, the number of adoptions of children of native descent has doubled.

In the province, there have been 100 adoptions of Indian and Metis children since the start of AIM, compared with 50 during the previous year. In the project area, consisting of the Regina, Moose Jaw, Weyburn and Qu'Appelle welfare regions, the total rose to 45 from 18.

The $120,000 project is being paid for by the federal government with the provincial welfare department supplying staff and office facilities.

A saturation advertising campaign launched the project, and Mr. Dornstauder said newspapers and broadcasters co-operated fully.

"One radio station here gave us 50 or 60 one-minute spot ads without any fee."

A problem has been the scarcity of Indian adoptive parents. Only six children have been placed with Indian and Metis families.

Pretty Evening Wedding Takes Place At Westbank

WESTBANK (Special)—Beautiful baskets of spring flowers graced the United Church on May 4 for the 7:30 p.m. candle-light service which united in marriage Margaret Ann Small, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Clare Small of Westbank, and Jan Mortensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Mortensen of Peachland. The Rev. R. D. Mitchell performed the rites of the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the radiant bride entered the church on his arm to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Phillip Wakefield. She was dressed in a floor-length gown of white crepe fashioned in an A design with beaded neckline and beaded sleeves. Her headpiece was beaded to match the gown, from which her double tulle veil fell gracefully to the floor in a train. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow roses intertwined with streamers of yellow ribbon.

For something old the bride wore her grandmother's opal ring, for something borrowed her mother's Brussels lace handkerchief and a blue garter. The bride's attendants were Miss Deborah Howes, Lakeview Heights, maid of honor, and Miss Yvonne Small, cousin of the bride, bridesmaid, of Westbank. Both wore identical floor-length gowns in coralorgette crepe, the bodices of which were fashioned with square necklines while the empire waistlines were gathered and held by ribbon bows, they wore stephanotis in their hair and carried bouquets of white daisies and stephanotis.

John Topham of Peachland was best man, while the ushers were the bride's brother Bob Small of Westbank and Bob Malenberg of Peachland.

The Westbank Community Hall was beautifully decorated with wedding bells, streamers and spring flowers, where 125 guests gathered for the reception. The bride's mother received wearing a turquoise shantung coat and dress with beige accessories and an orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore a beige dress and coat, white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Centering the bride's table was the three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with masses of rosebuds, in yellow and green with touches of silver leaves, flanked with sprays of lily-of-the-valley and greenery.

Master of ceremonies was A. E. Simmons, long-time friend and associate of the bride's father, who read telegrams from the bride's grandparents Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Small of Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Preston of Norman, Oklahoma, Mr. and Mrs. E. Reichert of Winnipeg, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Aitken of Vancouver and Mr. and Mrs. S. Watts of Worthing, England. Toasts were proposed by D. R. Small, uncle of the bride.

A delicious luncheon was served by the members of the United Church after which everyone danced.

Out-of-town guests included, Mrs. J. S. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs.

General Meeting Follows OSB Meeting In Vernon

WESTBANK (Special) — Mrs. Kneller, the Okanagan-Similkameen representative gave a report on the annual OSB meeting which was held in Vernon.

A general meeting took place immediately after the annual, with H. Kneller presiding. Hannam volunteered services to meet with the Parks board to discuss telephone, lifeguard, notice board, raft matting, diving board, drinking fountain, light, painting and caretaking of the building at the Aquatic beach.

Pearson Takes Look Back At Events In Long Career

OTTAWA (CP) — In the following exclusive interview with The Canadian Press, held before he formally resigned as prime minister of Canada, Lester B. Pearson gives his personal assessment of his long career in government and politics.

Mr. Pearson: One thing that has struck me very forcibly, as I look back, is that whereas there are those who plan their lives, who from the age of 4 want to be prime minister, or be the manager of a ball team or something like that, I seem to have moved along from one activity to another without any conscious plan.

Perhaps there was a Divine plan. But there was certainly no conscious plan on my part. I've always been interested in taking advantage of every opportunity to do new work, interesting work and responsible work.

But as I moved from one thing to another I never had any ultimate objective in mind. Unlike, for instance, John Diefenbaker who always hoped to be prime minister, or Paul Martin, who, from an early age, so he once told me, concentrated on a political career. If you go into politics, naturally you want to get to the top.

I spent a good many years, as you know, in external affairs. It was a very interesting time especially during the war years when I was in London and Washington.

I was interested in politics as a normal, perhaps a little more than a normal, citizen because I had taught some political courses.

I remember when I was working here at the archives in the summer of 1926, I spent hours in the parliamentary gallery during that exciting time. Indeed, I was in the gallery the night a member, Mr. Bird, I think, broke his pair inadvertently and destroyed Mr. Meighen's government.

(Thomas William Bird, Progressive MP for Nelson, provided the margin July 1, 1926, when the Meighen government was defeated 96 to 95 on a confidence motion. Mr. Bird unsuccessfully sought to withdraw his vote on the grounds that he had an arrangement with an absent Conservative MP not to vote. The Speaker ruled that, once cast, a vote could not be changed or withdrawn.)

(Mr. Pearson is one of the handful of people in the Commons on the two occasions a Canadian government has been defeated on a confidence issue. He was a participant Feb. 5, 1963, when the Liberals were joined by other opposition parties in overthrowing the Conservative government of John Diefenbaker.)

So, I had an interest in politics. I also used to read a lot of political biographies. But my interest was not such as to persuade me to leave the civil service.

It was Mr. St. Laurent that persuaded me to go into politics. It wasn't Mr. King. It was Mr. St. Laurent.

During my early years as secretary of state for external affairs, I was hardly in politics. I was in a very controversial political matter then.

I had very little contact with the rough and tumble of parliamentary politics, until the pipeline debate of 1956 — and during the Suez business.

About that time, I very nearly left politics because NATO wanted me to be secretary-general. I very nearly took that on before the election of '57.

Personal bitterness and hostility between leaders now is nothing like it used to be. If you read the language exchanged even between men like Borden and Laurier, even more the things that 19th century leaders used to say about each other you would agree that things have improved in the Commons.

The difference however, is that everything you say or do now is spread around the country at once, and with dramatic effect, by our modern media of communications. Therefore, any evidence of deterioration of Parliament, or parliamentarians, any scandal in Parliament is much more serious now than it used to be.

CP: Were you referring to the Gerda Munsinger or the Lucien Rivard affairs?

Mr. Pearson: Starting with the Rivard affair and going right through to Munsinger, it was a sordid time. This didn't worry some parliamentarians, I suppose, as much as it worried me because to them it was a part, if an unseemly part, of parliamentary and political life. It may be argued that they have to expect these things from time to time in politics, but I didn't like it.

CP: You regard yourself as a reformer?

Mr. Pearson: Well, I am certainly a reformer. If I wasn't a reformer why should I have been in politics. There would have been no place for me in a Liberal government.

Indeed all parties now are reform parties. All have both reformers and conservatives inside their ranks. The Liberal party merely reforms more effectively.

But in its ranks and in its governments, every spectrum of political thought is represented. This makes the problem of keeping a Liberal cabinet united and cohesive a fascinating one for its leader.

CP: How did you keep it from falling apart?

Mr. Pearson: It's a diplomatic exercise. The best training for a government leader now is diplomacy plus politics: 10 years in the House of Commons and then 10 years in external affairs. I only had the 10 years in external affairs when I became leader.

CP: What of your future plans?

Mr. Pearson: I'm going to teach and write and do some lecturing at a university. I've had many university offers, mostly from the United States. But I'll try to get attached to a Canadian university, though not in a way that will give me too much to do. I don't want to retire, and then work harder than I did before I retired. I would like to also begin to get my papers in order and start collecting material for a biography.

emotions to influence my judgment.

In such situations I am both too naive and too sensitive and I feel I didn't exercise the control in the House of Commons that a prime minister should have done when facing those circumstances.

To answer your specific question, I laid down certain standards for my own personal conduct — in private and public life — which my parents had in early life taught me to value and to accept. I hope I have been reasonably successful in living up to them.

CP: Did you achieve generally what you set out to do?

Mr. Pearson: I think so. If I had known how hard it was going to be to do so, I might never have tried. Looking back, I think I have some cause to be satisfied with the results. But I wish I could have done better.

New Life As Private Citizen

I also have to do some re-training of myself for my new life as a private citizen, without the help and services that a prime minister enjoys.

I will have to learn how to dial a telephone, cash a cheque, rake the garden, and things like that, which you forget about when you're spoiled and looked after as a prime minister; when you press a button and someone brings you a dollar bill or a jet plane.

I don't even know how to buy a ticket any longer. So I'll need a re-training course in living.

CP: How did you measure up to your own standards in the 10 years since you've become leader?

Mr. Pearson: No man, I hope,

Storm In Quebec Legislature Ends In Apology For Drapeau

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Hanley (I-Ste. Anne) stormed out of a public bills committee meeting and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau received an apology in a dramatic scene in the Quebec legislature Tuesday.

Mr. Hanley, who represents a Montreal working-class riding and is a Montreal city councillor, became angry when his plea on banded knee asking the Montreal mayor to fence off a park on Ste. Helen's Island for use by poor persons was rejected by Mr. Drapeau.

The park lies within the boundaries of the city-sponsored Man and His World exhibition due to open Friday.

Mr. Hanley said the island, part of Expo '67, should be fenced off to let poor people use the island park without paying admission charges to Man and His World. Mayor Drapeau, annoyed, said he had had enough of "demagogues" trying to confuse the public.

After Mr. Drapeau's blunt rejection of his plea, the independent MLA turned to the legislative assembly and demanded his suggested amendment to Montreal's city charter be put to a vote. This request was also turned down.

ALLEGED CORRUPTION

Mr. Hanley then launched into a harsh criticism of the Drapeau administration, alleging that corruption exists at city

Lear Jet Returned

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett said Tuesday night that a Lear jet in its highways department fleet of aircraft.

"We have already sold it, and the penalty clause was cancelled because we are business government," said Mr. Bennett.

He made the statement after being interrupted by a heckler at a byelection rally in the south constituency.

Mr. Bennett later told reporters that the $25,000 penalty for cancelling the contract was absorbed by the company leasing the aircraft to the highways department.

Under Pressure At Time

I had always hoped that Doug Abbott would succeed Mr. St. Laurent as the leader of the party. Indeed, when I was secretary of state for external affairs I told him so. I thought he should not go to the Supreme Court.

Then I thought that perhaps Walter Harris or Paul Martin would succeed Mr. St. Laurent. But I was under great pressure at that time, after the defeat of '57 and Mr. St. Laurent's resignation. I had acquired a certain prestige because of the things I had done in external affairs.

But I hesitated for a month or so. I certainly wouldn't have stood if I had had to go through the kind of leadership campaign that recently finished.

There was nothing of that. In 1958, indeed, I didn't even leave Ottawa then. During the week before the convention I had rooms at a hotel where I met people. It was an easy campaign.

Then I got off to the most exciting start that a political leader ever experienced. That was a very bad beginning. I certainly would have been quite happy to have left my job that first night. But the tougher it became the more difficult it was to leave without appearing to run away.

That particular first motion, for instance, that I made on my first day in the House as leader of the Opposition.

Looking back, even three or four weeks after the fact, I thought of two or three good motions of no-confidence that I could have moved and that wouldn't have got me into any particular trouble.

But my expert advisers thought the motion telling the government to resign and hand the government over to us was a smart thing to do. It would avoid an election.

Looking back, I recall there were several of us that went over the text of that motion the day before. As far as I can remember the only two people who actually told me it was a stupid motion to put before Parliament were — first, my wife, second, my executive assistant, Mary Macdonald. Others may have felt so but they didn't tell me.

So I began to question in my mind the infallibility of the political expert. I should add that I learned, I think, as I went along, job instruction. My initiation, however, was an unhappy and a chastening experience.

CP: D'Arcy says in his biography on Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "The prime minister under the party system as we have it in Canada is of necessity an egotist and an autocrat." You haven't been either. Perhaps your wife has something to do with this.

Mr. Pearson: Every wife has something to do with keeping you from being an autocrat. I don't need to tell you that. This may be a handicap for Mr. Trudeau.

No, I think my basic disadvantage about political tactics didn't start in those days, and it remained to some extent right to the end, was that I hadn't gone through the political mill.

There is no real substitute for political experience in learning about political tactics. I didn't have that.

So I was rather out of my depth at the beginning, and because I was out of my depth I assumed that the experts, the real Channel swimmers, would always be able to tell me what to do.

Often, of course, their advice was good and right, just as their experience and support and loyalty was indispensable. I gratefully acknowledge that.

CP: This never happened after you had the experience?

Mr. Pearson: Oh yes, it did. I continued to make mistakes of course. But I felt they were my own mistakes and it was less and less easy for me to feel that others must share the blame for my mistakes. I learned a lot in opposition.

Most Satisfying Achievement

When you asked me what I consider to be my most satisfying achievement, it's one that I haven't mentioned in answering that question so often addressed to me during the last two or three months.

In my view what we did in those five years of opposition, to bring a party from nothing to where it could win an election, was a very considerable achievement.

As a result of our efforts, when we came to the election of '62, we were a strong, cohesive, well-organized party.

While we weakened the government in that election we didn't defeat it. But from a small group we had become an opposition of nearly 100 members.

MISTAKES OF CAMPAIGN

There are those who, looking back, now say that we made a lot of tactical mistakes in that campaign and in that of 1963.

But what people forget is that while we did some flamboyant things that may have appeared silly if we had conducted the other kind of careful, sober campaign, we might not have done so well.

Take, for instance, the "60 days of decision." That may now seem absurd in the light of the misfortunes we encountered in our early days of government.

But if we hadn't taken that decisive, confident stand at that particular time at the end of the campaign of '63 and got across the idea that we were going to do things that hadn't been done in the years before, we might not have reached the position where we could have formed a government at all.

Later, this "60 days" assertion certainly hurt us because we soon had some unfortunate mishaps.

But from the point of view of winning the election, I believe that the approach that we were really going to do important things at once, in 60 days, helped us.

Looking back over those five years we did achieve major objectives that I had in mind when we took office.

True, we often went through blood, sweat, and tears, in order to do it. This is often attributed to the fact that our political tactics were bad.

That's, in part, true. We made mistakes, of course. But people often forget that it's very hard to face up to and try to resolve big and controversial issues when you're a minority government.

You asked me about some of the things that might have made me want to get out of political leadership; some of the things I regretted most in my political life.

The worst of them were the scandals in Parliament, the atmosphere of Parliament, a year or so back. That was a terrible time.

It wasn't any worse, I know, than other similar situations in earlier Canadian parliaments. Our private manners and our public morals in the Commons are higher than they used to be in earlier days. We often forget

Long Weekend Of Sport Scheduled For Kelowna

By ALJE KAMMINGA
Courier Sports Editor

Kelowna's sport pulse begins beating at a frantic pace Thursday as the first of many major events opens in the city and surrounding area.

Thursday will mark the return of senior lacrosse to the Okanagan after an absence of what most sports buffs believe, has been much too long a time. The Kelowna O'Keefe's take on Vernon in the opening game for the four-team league. Other centres in the league are Kamloops and Armstrong.

Game time is 8 p.m. at the Kelowna Memorial Arena.

In Rutland, preparations are being made for the annual May Day softball tournament. Eight teams are entered including all five from the Kelowna and District Senior B Softball League.

Other teams entered are Langley Pastimers, Whalley Molsons and Kamloops LeLands. Other teams are: Rutland Rovers, Vernon O'Keefe's, Kelowna Carlings, Willow Inn Willows and Royal Anne Royals. The tourney gets under way Saturday at 1:30 p.m. with Miss Rutland and her princesses kicking off the official opening ceremonies.

In the first game, Rutland plays the Willows. At 3 p.m., the Cals meet the Royals; at 4:45 p.m., Langley plays Vernon and at 6:30 p.m., Whalley plays Kamloops.

The double-knockout tournament resumes Sunday at 12 noon and Monday at 10 a.m. Trophies and prizes will be presented by Miss Rutland after the final game.

The Silvertip Archers of Kelowna will hold their second annual bowfishing derby Sunday at 10 a.m. The competition, at Duck Lake, will last until 4 p.m. with various prizes and trophies up for grabs.

One of Kelowna's biggest events of the year will also be held Sunday. The Okanagan Hill Climb at Knox Mountain Park will throw some of Western Canada's and the United States' top drivers into the racing arena.

Various classes of cars will be competing in the 11th annual hill climb, sponsored by the Okanagan Auto Sport Club. Saturday there is baseball action at Elks Stadium when the Kelowna Labatts play host to Penticton in an Okanagan Mainline Baseball League encounter.

Derby Trial Climax Near

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The climax of the 1968 Kentucky Derby, 11 days late, appeared near at hand today as a stewards' hearing into the disqualification of Dancer's Image as the winner neared its close.

The three Churchill Downs stewards, racing's judge and jury, pondered more than 20 hours of testimony from a parade of eight witnesses, with Lou Cavalaris, trainer of Dancer's Image, due back today for a flying trip to work his horse in Baltimore.

Only one day remained before entries were due to Saturday's Preakness and the stewards made it known they wanted to finish the hearing so the colt's name could be dropped into the Pimlico entry box. Involved in an illegal administration of a pain-killer to Dancer's Image.

Kentucky racing rules, honored by all other states, prevent entry of Dancer's Image in any race until the matter here is closed.

The eight witnesses who testified before the stewards were: Peter Fuller, owner of Dancer's Image; Cavalaris, the man whose reputation is at stake in the hearing; Robert Barnard, assistant trainer of Dancer's Image, and Russell Parchem, the horse's groom.

Memorial Cup Finalists Plague Former Owners

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Niagara Falls Flyers and Estevan Bruins went into the first game of the Memorial Cup final wearing Boston Bruins uniforms to show Bruins owner Weston Adams how he "threw" away $1,000,000.

That was the way general manager Hap Emms of the Flyers and Scotty Munro of the Bruins Tuesday night described their feelings about an agreement that has forced discontinuation of amateur sponsorship by professional hockey clubs.

"We just wanted to show Adams how he threw $1,000,000 dollars down the drain," said Emms, whose Flyers lead the best-of-seven Canadian junior hockey championships 3-1.

Both Niagara Falls and Estevan skated onto the ice last week for the first game of the final in identical uniforms. Both clubs are farmhands of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League and were sponsored by that club until two years ago.

"Then, because some of the NHL clubs were weak at the management level they allowed themselves to be talked into dropping sponsorship of amateur clubs," Emms said.

ADAMS WAS WATCHING
Munro and Emms agreed before the game "that both clubs would wear Boston uniforms because we knew the Bruins' owner would be in the stands and we wanted to show him what the 38 players on the two clubs would have been worth."

The clubs played the entire game in Boston uniforms—Estevan wearing the home sweaters and Niagara Falls donning the road jerseys.

Niagara Falls have used uniforms from St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series since.

Sponsorship of amateur clubs by NHL teams was dropped after an agreement between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the NHL.

Under its terms, the NHL now turns over $600,000 annually to the CAHA for the development of minor hockey in Canada.

"Those 38 players would have been worth at least $1,000,000 to Boston," said Emms. "Now I would say conservatively that the Bruins have lost 15 years of hockey players."

Royals Win Again In Softball Action

Royal Anne Royals exploded for seven runs in the second inning Tuesday for 9-2 victory over Vernon in Senior B Softball action at King's Stadium.

The win secured the Royals' hold on first place in the five-team league.

The Royals got a solid pitching performance from winner Bunny Combes who at one stage, retired 16 men in a row. Gib Loseth came on in relief in the sixth inning and was tagged for both runs.

Loseth and Combes combined to strike out 12 while giving up only three hits. Both Vernon runs were scored in the seventh inning when the game was well out of reach.

Royal batters meanwhile amassed 12 hits, five of them for extra bases. The big blows were delivered by Norbert Korthals and Jack Unser who both stroked out home-runs.

Joe Fisher had a triple and a double while Korthals also had a double.

Nick Bulach brought an inconspicuous beginning to the seventh inning when he drew a base on balls. Unser then tagged a homer to bring across the first two runs.

Combes got on by an error to the first baseman, and was advanced on Rod Bennett's single and Wayne Horning's sacrifice.

Richard Bullock took advantage of the second error in the inning to get on base and watch another run cross the plate. Korthals then slammed out his double.

Joe Fisher flied to centre field for the second out of the inning bringing up Nick Bulach for the second time. Walked the first time, he rode out a single in his second effort.

Unser, who ignited the rally with his homer earlier in the inning, drove out a single in his second trip to the plate for the only two-hit performance of the inning.

Combes then flied out to end the inning. Seven runs had crossed the plate on two errors and six hits.

Gerry Altwasser went the distance on the mound for the losers and picked up the loss. Garret Howard, Ike Coulter and Lorne Shockey collected the only hits for Vernon, all singles.

In the only game scheduled today, the Royals visit Kelowna Carlings. Game time is 7:30 p.m. at King's Stadium.

Hunter Yields More Runs But Still Comes Up Happy

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oakland pitcher Catfish Hunter and Cleveland Manager Alvin Dark were far from perfect Tuesday night. But, though neither was around at the finish, their respective ball games had the perfect endings.

In his first appearance since his perfect game against Minnesota last week, Hunter was jolted for five runs in the first inning but staggered to victory as the Athletics outslugged the Twins 13-8.

Dark was thrown out by umpire Bill Valentine for protesting two called balls as the sizzling Indians beat New York Yankees 4-2 for their fifth straight victory and 11th in the last 10 games.

Cleveland took over undisputed possession of second place in the American League when Baltimore timore bowed to league-leading Detroit 4-0. It was the Orioles' seventh straight setback following an eight-game winning streak.

In other action, Boston edged Washington 5-4 in 10 innings and Chicago nipped California 7-6 on Duane Josephson's seventh-inning homer.

Hunter was lifted after allowing the Twins eight runs and the same number of hits, including four homers, in six innings. But he got credit for the victory as the As overcame a 5-0 Minnesota lead.

Rod Carew belted Hunter's second pitch over the fence and Tony Oliva and Rico Rollins added two-run homers before the first inning was over.

"After those three homers I think I woke up," Hunter said. "I think I was just trying to get the ball too close to the plate. But I got the win and that's all that really counts. My goal is to win 20 games and I'll take them that way (the perfect game) or this."

Don Pitches For Survival

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nolan Ryan and Ron Reed are having the time of their young lives throwing smoke past National League batters.

Old pro Don Drysdale is throwing shutouts for survival.

Ryan, New York Mets' rookie sensation, and Reed, Atlanta's first-year flash, each zipped to his fourth victory of the season Tuesday night.

Drysdale, meanwhile, fired a two-hitter for his first triumph in a month as Los Angeles Dodgers squeezed by Chicago Cubs 1-0. The 13-year Dodger veteran had lost three straight well-pitched games after beating New York in his first start by a 1-0 count.

STRIKES OUT 14
Ryan shackled Cincinnati on four hits and struck out 14 for a club record in hurling the Mets to a 3-2 decision over the Reds.

Reed scattered five hits in subduing Philadelphia 3-1 for his fourth victory without a loss.

Frank Johnson's first major league home run carried San Francisco Giants past Houston 2-1 in the only other NL game. The Pittsburgh-St. Louis contest was rained out.

Drysdale limited the Cubs to a fourth inning single by Don Kessinger and a fifth inning single by opposing pitcher Ferguson Jenkins. The 31-year-old right-hander finished with seven strikeouts, including a pair that got him out of serious jams.

Drysdale fanned Ernie Banks in the fourth, stranding Chicago runners on second and third. He left Cubs on first and third in the fifth by striking out Kessinger.

GET RUN IN SIXTH
The Dodgers pushed over the game's only run in the sixth when Wes Parker singled, took third on Willie Davis' single and scored as Ron Fairly bounced into a force out.

Ryan, 21, struck out five of the last six Cincinnati batters to break the Mets' single game strikeout mark of 13 set by Dick Selma three years ago in a 10-inning game against Milwaukee. Tom Seaver fanned 12 in nine innings during his sensational 1967 rookie season.

ALJE REPORTS

How Horses Go To 'Pot'

By ALJE KAMMINGA

DANCER'S IMAGE may go down in sporting history as the first thoroughbred hippie ever to win the Kentucky Derby. And the first ever to be disqualified because he was "high" on phenylbutazone.

The story of Dancer's Image being disqualified after winning the Kentucky Derby is still making headlines in racing circles. In Canada the interest lies in the fate of trainer Lou Cavalaris of Toronto.

If Cavalaris is to be believed, and officials have made it fairly obvious he will be, the story is basically one of a horse with sore feet and impeded circulation.

CAVALARIS CONTENDS he gave Dancer's Image the drug a full week before the race, plenty of time under normal circumstances for the drug to disappear from the horse's system.

But Dancer's Image has sore ankles and during the time he was "under the influence" his ankles were being soaked in ice water.

Enough to impede the colt's circulation? Cavalaris says yes.

In any case, by putting Dancer's Image ankle-deep in ice water, Cavalaris has put himself knee-deep in trouble.

FOLLOWING IS the latest news gathered by Associated Press. Details also appear elsewhere on this page:

Churchill Downs stewards indicated Tuesday their hearing in the disqualification of Dancer's Image might continue today and perhaps longer.

They also said a prime concern was to try to have the colt—Canadian two-year-old champion last year—eligible to race again by the Thursday morning entry time for the Preakness, the second jewel in the triple crown for three-year-olds.

UNDER RACING rules, any horse such as Dancer's Image, found to have raced with illegal medication in his system, becomes ineligible to race until a stewards' hearing is completed.

Kenneth Smith, the chemist who found phenylbutazone in the colts post-Derby urine specimen, had been before the stewards for six hours when the first news got through the security surrounding the hearing. Smith's report resulted in disqualification of Dancer's Image and the declaration of Forward Pass, runner-up in the $125,000-added classic, as the 1968 winner.

CAVALARIS PUBLICLY told of giving the colt a medication the Sunday before the Derby but added that it should have disappeared from the colt's system long before the race. Veterinarians questioned separately agreed. They set the dissipation time at about 88 hours, slightly less than half the time Cavalaris said he allowed.

Sturgeon said four lawyers were attending the hearing, being conducted by stewards Lewis Finley, Leo O'Donnell and John G. Goode.

Chris Duval represented Smith while Arthur Grafton and Ned Bonnie were lawyers for Peter Fuller of Boston, owner of Dancer's Image. Cavalaris, Barnard and Parchem.

THE HEARING, nearing a length of about 800 times as long as it took Dancer's Image to win the 1 1/4-mile Derby, began Monday, continuing for 11 hours and 15 minutes before the overnight break.

Fuller and Cavalaris were excused from Tuesday's session to fly to Baltimore for a workout session with Dancer's Image. The colt worked three furlongs in 36 1-5 seconds.

In Baltimore they declined to answer questions, saying they were sworn to secrecy. They did say they would return to Churchill Downs this morning.

REMEMBER WHEN Jimmy Russell, the Toronto sculler, swept to victory in record time at the American Henley at Philadelphia 31 years ago today—in 1937. Wearing the double blues of Toronto Argonauts, Russell rowed the mile and five furlongs in seven minutes 31.4 seconds, breaking the 7:45.1 record set in 1934 by William Rutherford of Princeton University.

Better Papermaking Aim Of New Agency In Britain

LONDON (CP) — A government agency that aims to make British industry more efficient says Britain's papermakers could help themselves by company mergers.

The Industrial Reorganisation Corp. also urges greater use of waste paper and home-grown wood pulp in British mills and says it is ready to consider granting funds to projects aimed at reducing reliance on imports. Canada is a major source of paper and pulp imports.

The IRC report, partly published today, amounts to government approval for reorganizing the paper-making industry into bigger, more efficient units. IRC approval of such mergers in the past has removed any fear of anti-monopolies action.

More than 100 companies operate about 220 paper and pulp mills in Britain, but 80 per cent of the business is done by the 15 biggest companies, including Bowater Paper Corp. and Reed Paper Group.

Mergers have been urged for several years in the face of competition from lower-cost producers in Canada and Scandinavia, and unused productive capacity at home.

Last fall, the British Paper and Board Makers' Association called in the IRC to report on the industry's structure. The association today released the IRC's main recommendations.

The IRC, proposing "a substantial measure of regrouping" in the paper industry, is expected to serve as matchmaker among merging companies in coming months.

The government's interest is in saving foreign exchange as well as generally improving industrial efficiency.

At present, combined tonnage of waste paper and domestic wood pulp used annually almost match the 2,500,000 tons of imported pulp, mostly from Canada.

Opening lead—queen of clubs. It is a fundamental principle of play that you don't put your eggs in one basket if you can help it. After all, if you can arrange to give yourself two chances to make a contract instead of one, you are much more likely to succeed in the long run.

This principle of keeping a second method of play in reserve, if the first method is in danger of failing, can be successfully applied far more often than is generally realized.

For example, consider this hand where declarer is in five diamonds and West leads the queen of clubs. South's prospects are certainly not bright—it looks as though he must cash the A-K of clubs and ruff a club, assuming he finds the clubs divided 3-3, lead the ace and another diamond in the hope of finding the trumps divided 2-2. If both these hopes mature, South makes the contract with an overtrick.

In the actual case, this method of play fails because the clubs turn out to be divided 4-2 and South must eventually go down one.

However, South can make the contract if he does not rely exclusively on the 3-3 club break. He has a much better chance if he ducks the opening lead of the queen of clubs.

Regardless of what West returns, South has the hand under control. Assume West continues with a club. Declarer wins in dummy with the king, ruffs a club, leads the ace and another diamond, and winds up with eleven tricks by cashing dummy's remaining clubs.

The advantage of this method of play—once the necessary assumption of a favorite trump division is made—is that declarer makes the contract not only when the clubs divide 3-3, but also when they are divided 4-2. The extra chance which declarer gives himself proves to be the decisive factor.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW
A highly stimulating day! All sound business and financial affairs should run smoothly, show gain. In personal relationships, be discreet, however—especially in the P.M. Some persons may be overly sensitive; will need extremely tactful handling.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY
If tomorrow is your birthday, your planetary chart for the year ahead is marked with several notably high spots. There's indication, for instance, of great improvement in your financial status; also in job and business interests, during the next seven months. All this, of course, provided that you cooperate with stellar help and do not hope to have benefits handed to you on the proverbial silver platter. For specific advice:

increase only through conservative management. Best months for career advancement and recognition: September, November, December and next March—though the entire year should be generally good.

Happiest note of all, perhaps, is the fine outlook in your personal life. In the field of romance, look for some interesting developments between now and late September; also in late October and next April. Travel and social activities should prove exceptionally stimulating between now and mid-September, and a generally excellent cycle for the Taurean; also in late December, January and April.

A child born on this day will be endowed with a charming personality, a great love of beauty and unusual tenacity of purpose.

STUDIES INDIANS
VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Paul Termanson, assistant psychiatry professor at the University of British Columbia medical school, has been awarded a Vancouver Foundation grant of $4,000 to study the patterns of mental illness among B.C. Indians. He will seek to establish whether they have unique patterns because of their social, economic and cultural problems.

Downtown Parking Plans Submitted At Peachland

PEACHLAND — Parking plans for the downtown business district were submitted by George Finlayson on behalf of the Peachland and District Chamber of Commerce who undertook this survey at request of council. These plans show angle parking on the lake side of Beach Avenue with parallel parking on the building side, with a five-minute parking zone for four stalls at the post office. When questioned as to why not angle parking on both sides of the street, Mr. Finlayson said that after taking measurement he felt this would not be advisable leaving the through traffic lanes too narrow.

Another recommendation included in this study was the removal of the boat launching ramp from this area, eliminating all-day parking of cars and boat trailers. A floating dock could be provided at the present location, for use of the boating public, with easy access to stores and hotel. Council gave approval in principle to this parking plan, and appointed Ald. J. H. Clements and Ald. W. S. Elstone, to a committee to make a field trip, study and plan thoroughly, and make any adjustments deemed necessary.

Bylaw 445, the 1968 budget

bylaw, was reconsidered and finally passed.

Bylaw 447 Peachland capital budget bylaw 1968-1972 was reconsidered and finally passed.

Surveyors' plans for the regulation station for the Inland Natural Gas Co. on Minto St., were approved and clerk as signing officer authorized to sign.

Final plans submitted by C. Hendricks, for the subdivision of his property into three lots were approved and clerk authorized to sign.

Subdivision plans of Block 14 submitted by Marbar Holdings, were studied, the regional planner William Hardcastle of Kelowna, who was present at the meeting, stated the plans in this new form had been drawn up with the approval of his office. Approval in principle was given subject to signed undertaking being obtained re municipal services.

The meeting of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities to be held in Vancouver in September was discussed, Ald. W. S. Elstone and Ald. T. R. Stuart stated their intention of attending, as representatives of the municipality.

Mrs. G. W. Burns, assistant municipal clerk was appointed as municipal collector.

The meeting of the Okanagan Valley Municipal Association, which is to be held on May 16 in Peachland, was discussed, arrangements have been made to hold the meeting in the Pioneer room at the Totem Inn, Peachland. The municipal clerk was instructed to contact the secretary of the group to try and obtain more definite figures as to the number expected to attend.

Mayor Harold Thwaites announced he would not be able to attend the meeting owing to unforeseen circumstances. Ald. T. R. Stuart was appointed acting mayor for this occasion.

Mrs. Peter Stym attended council to request a site plan for the proposed new house on the site of the Athletic Hall. She explained she was acting on behalf of the director of the Peachland Community Junior Choir, which is planning to stage another opera in the latter part of June. With the piano on the stage, the 24 children who will be taking part, will not have enough space to perform. Ald. Stuart explained that the rule about this piano not being moved, had been made by council to safeguard the new floor, and also the piano which needs tuning after each moving.

Mrs. Stym suggested it could be moved just the once, and then left till after the opera. Mayor Thwaites suggested that Mrs. Mitchell write a note to the hall committee, stating dates, and the minimum time she would require the piano off the stage. Council could study whether this move would conflict with any booking of the hall and make their decision.

Ed Bodnar attended council to clarify changes made by the department of highways in the road leading to his new trailer park. He also submitted plan for subdividing part of his property into two lots. Council had no objections to road changes, and gave approval in principle to the subdivision.

John Symonds requested oiling of the road adjoining his motel. Ald. Clements, roads chairman, said that in other communities this was done on a cost-sharing basis. Mr. Symonds stated he would be willing to share cost on his half of the road, as dust raised by increased traffic now using this road was a real nuisance. As the land on the other side of this road is a government park site, the clerk was requested to write this department to see if they would also share in the costs involved. Mr. Symonds requested information as to changes in trade licence fees as set by the recently passed bylaw 442, these enquiries were answered by Mrs. G. W. Burns.

Both former ministers said Newland needs a formal economic planning, along the lines recommended by a royal commission on economic prospects in its report handed to the government in February.

DEFEND PREMIER
A parade of government members defended the development policies and the premier against "innuendo" that he was a dictator. Many of them said development often involves gambles which must be taken.

The premier said the actions of the two would unite the party which had grown complacent in Newfoundland after six consecutive election wins. Liberals would be angry and every Liberal voter would be out to vote in the June 25 federal election.

Mr. Smallwood said he had been warned two years ago he would "have trouble with John Crosbie" because the latter was "strong-minded, strong-willed and politically ambitious... but I thought I'd be a match for him."

He said there were two precedents for Mr. Wells' resignation — his association as president of the provincial Young Liberals several years ago and his relinquishing after only a few months the labour portfolio he was given in 1966.

"Now he has three scalps hanging from his belt... I don't think his mind is settled," Mr. Smallwood said.

The premier didn't understand why the ministers left the government side of the legislature completely.

Former Alberta Treasurer Tells Of "Sympathy" Money

EDMONTON (CP) — E. W. Hinman, former Alberta provincial treasurer, testified Tuesday that of $11,000 which came from Edmonton businessman Jake Superstein, $5,000 had been deposited to his bank account as "a voluntary gesture of sympathy."

Mr. Hinman also testified the other $6,000 was for equity in 2,000 shares of a Cardston, Alta., service station.

A deposit slip for $5,000 and a cheque for $6,000 were entered as exhibits at a judicial inquiry into allegations that Mr. Hinman used, or attempted to use, his public office for personal gain.

Mr. Hinman was elected to the legislature in 1952 as a Social Credit member for the Cardston constituency and was appointed provincial treasurer in 1955. He resigned from the cabinet at Premier E. C. Manning's request in 1964 and continued to sit as a member but was not nominated for last May's provincial election.

Mr. Hinman told the inquiry the deposit was made after Douglas Layton, his brother-in-law, was killed in an automobile accident July 24, 1962. The deposit slip was dated July 27, 1962.

Mr. Hinman said that Mr. Superstein heard of the accident and expressed his sympathy, saying that "if I needed a little money to keep these affairs going... he would be glad to lend it."

The affairs referred to business enterprises shared by Mr. Layton and the former provincial treasurer, said Mr. Hinman in reply to questioning.

The enterprises were ranching operations, a garage at Pincher Creek, Alta., and one at Fort Macleod, Alta. None of the companies ever drew on the $5,000, Mr. Hinman said. The funds were used to settle the personal things that were outstanding.

He said a cheque for $6,000 from Mr. Superstein was payment for shares in B and R Service (Cardston) Ltd. It was dated July 3, 1961, and payable to B and R Service.

HAD CAPITAL NEED
Mr. Hinman said Mr. Superstein volunteered the money after Mr. Hinman told him the business was in need of fresh capital. "I'd told him he could either have equity or make it a loan."

A B and R annual report entered as evidence showed Mr. Superstein received 2,000 shares of stock for $6,000.

Mr. Hinman said he had no further dealings or differences with Mr. Superstein between 1962 and 1966, when Mr. Superstein filed a statement of claim against him for $11,000 plus interest and costs. The action was discontinued in 1967.

The statement was also entered as an exhibit and said Mr. Superstein loaned $5,000 to Mr. Hinman in July, 1962, and $6,000 to B and R Service in July, 1961, at Mr. Hinman's request.

The hearing is continuing.

A WORLD WAR RECALLED

Breaking Of Allied Codes Almost Brought Disaster

LONDON (CP) — Initial German superiority in code-breaking and other forms of intelligence almost brought disaster to the Allies in the first half of the Second World War, says author Donald McLachlan.

It wasn't until 1943 that the British Navy finally overcame a "tragic and shocking failure of signal security" that gave German U-boats a rich harvest of sunken supply ships, says McLachlan in his book Room 39, a story of British wartime naval intelligence.

The book, published by Wendenfeld and Nicholson, lifts the cover on a number of hitherto unknown secret incidents: The weakness of British intelligence; the failure of commanders to take advantage of secret information and the reluctance of the British naval staff to give up old-fashioned hand-made ci-phers for more secure electronic machines.

McLachlan, former Sunday Telegraph editor who served on the personal staff of the naval intelligence director during the war, says the battle of wireless wits began in 1936 when a British squadron in the Mediterranean began using codes in its watch on Italian preparations to invade Abyssinia.

BUILT UP PATTERN
The result was a "cryptanalyst's feast" for German agents. Call signs were easily identified and key words and phrases regularly repeated. The Germans built up a coding pattern that later provided a wartime window on routes, positions and travel times of Atlantic and other convoys.

Until the Allies finally seized the upper hand in code-breaking in 1943, German U-boats were able to sink 11,500 tons of supply ships in the North Atlantic alone, "to say nothing of the humiliation and losses of the Norway campaign of 1940 and other episodes."

So "deplorable" was the state of Atlantic convoy codes—that German intelligence was able to detect their full meaning after only the briefest intervals. By October, 1942, the Germans had cracked another cipher so quickly that sometimes German U-boat headquarters had the information 10 to 20 hours in advance of Allied movement.

McLachlan's major argument is that Britain must never again be allowed to sink into apathy in wireless and other forms of intelligence.

VALLEY INVESTMENT HIGH

Mr. Van Luven said it takes a long time to make up strike losses and certainly investments are affected, particularly in the forest industry.

The president painted an optimistic picture of the economic future of B.C.

"From what I can gather, economic conditions here are better than in any province in Canada," he said. The only possible exception being Alberta.

He said labor settlements could have an adverse effect, especially if they applied only to B.C., "pricing the province out of the market." He particularly mentioned shipbuilding.

The biggest volume of business handled by the exchange on any one day was in November, 1965, when 7,000,000 shares were traded — the largest volume in North America that day. (Caused by the Pyramid-Pine Point flurry).

"I will go out on a limb and say sometime this year we will exceed the 7,000,000 share volume," Mr. Van Luven said. He based his prediction on "upcoming mining developments in new opening areas."

He warned investors to be cautious when the news comes out, to consult a recognized member of the exchange, before buying. Asked to be more specific in the areas referred to, he said copper fields, Port Hardy and oil explorations in the Winnipeg area. A reef has been found in Montana which is thought to continue north of the border, he said.

"If all three hit at once, we'll be set," he said.

The press conference was told of the "tremendous growth" of the exchange in the last four to five years. In 1967 the trading volume was 365,000,000 shares and 1968 will be bigger.

Dollar-value corresponds to the volume of shares traded, about $365,000,000 in 1967 and currently at a ratio of $1.22, indicating the rise.

Mr. Tapp said the exchange is the fastest growing in Canada. Second in volume to the Toronto exchange and third in value.

The exchange on an average day sees trading of 1,300,000 shares with comparative figures for Toronto, of 3,600,000 and New York 10,000,000.

Commenting on the five per cent additional tax imposed by the provincial government on mining and forestry, Mr. Van Luven termed it "a completely regressive step." He said small operators need every incentive possible. He said he was against capital gains tax when a country is developing.

He said not all people are aware of the amount of money which must be raised and produced before the first dollar is made. In the case of Brenda Mines, he said about $150,000,000 had to be raised.

Commenting on the appointment of Waldo Skillings as minister of industry, he said "we can't be any worse off" and added a province growing industrially needs someone in charge of the economy.

Confidence Vote Follows Crisis In Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland's Liberal government, severely shaken Tuesday by two cabinet defections, got a confidence vote from the legislature early today after a marathon debate on economic policy and Premier Joseph Smallwood's leadership.

The vote at 2:20 a.m. NST ended a nine-hour, emotion-charged debate in which 39 of the legislature's 42 members spoke. Liberal members voted solidly against four Conservatives and the two defectors to carry the motion 28-6.

Two lawyers brought into the cabinet under a wholesale rejuvenation prior to the 1966 provincial election bolstered government ranks to sit as independent Liberals.

They were Health Minister John Crosbie (L—St. John's West), 37, and Clyde Wells (L—Humber East), 30, a minister without portfolio.

They said at a news conference they disagree with fundamental government economic development policy. Most recently, this involved a planned $5,000,000 fund for interim financing of an oil refinery to be built at Come-By-Chance, 90 miles west of here.

Their announcements followed by about an hour a statement from the premier that he had called for Mr. Crosbie's resignation from the cabinet.

ACCUSES CROSBIE
The premier released a letter to Mr. Crosbie which charged him with being disloyal and trying to use his political office to further the business interests of his family.

Mr. Crosbie said in a letter of resignation that he found "there is only one mystery" in the provincial cabinet. "The views of one man, yourself, must always prevail."

Mr. Crosbie denied in the legislature "unspeakable" allegations that he tried to acquire government contracts for his family's firms or to block the Come-By-Chance project when he couldn't get contracts from it.

He suggested such charges were "an attempt to destroy me" and said he would fight such attempts. He would seek an inquiry unless the charges are withdrawn.

Mr. Wells was not asked to resign. He gave similar reasons for his decision to do so. He also objected to the legislation before the house to permit the cabinet to lend up to $5,000,000 to Newfoundland Refining Ltd., backed by John Shaheen of New York. It was unnecessary and there was no protection for this public money if the project failed, he said.

Both former ministers said Newfoundland needs a formal economic planning, along the lines recommended by a royal commission on economic prospects in its report handed to the government in February.

DEFEND PREMIER
A parade of government members defended the development policies and the premier against "innuendo" that he was a dictator. Many of them said development often involves gambles which must be taken.

The premier said the actions of the two would unite the party which had grown complacent in Newfoundland after six consecutive election wins. Liberals would be angry and every Liberal voter would be out to vote in the June 25 federal election.

Mr. Smallwood said he had been warned two years ago he would "have trouble with John Crosbie" because the latter was "strong-minded, strong-willed and politically ambitious... but I thought I'd be a match for him."

He said there were two precedents for Mr. Wells' resignation — his association as president of the provincial Young Liberals several years ago and his relinquishing after only a few months the labour portfolio he was given in 1966.

"Now he has three scalps hanging from his belt... I don't think his mind is settled," Mr. Smallwood said.

The premier didn't understand why the ministers left the government side of the legislature completely.
